

DEVELOPMENT SEMINAR

SERIES 2016-17

The Development Seminar is an interdisciplinary initiative that critically examines issues of global inequality, post-colonial politics, and power in the Global South, broadly conceived. Guest speakers bring theoretical questions into tension with their innovative research – on issues that include migration, infrastructure, livelihoods, gender, politics and more.

The Seminar is sponsored by the Faculty of Arts and Science, with additional support from the Departments of Anthropology, Geography, Political Science, and Sociology. This year's seminar coordinators are Katherine Rankin (Professor, Geography), Rachel Silvey (Associate Professor, Geography) and Hadia Akhtar Khan (Phd Student, Anthropology).
