New Anthropology Faculty Hires

Anthropology at UTM has announced Dr. Tracey Galloway has accepted our offer as the outcome of the UTM search for a biological anthropologist with a focus on health. Meanwhile, UTSC has announced that Dr. Julie Teichroeb was the successful candidate in their recent behavioural primatology search. Both appointments are at the rank of Assistant Professor and will begin July 1, 2015. Congratulations to both Drs. Galloway and Teichroeb, we look forward to welcoming you to our Tri-Campus Graduate Faculty in July!

PhD Candidate Emily Hertzman Publishes Article in ASEAS

Congratulations to PhD Candidate Emily Hertzman for her recent publication appearing in the Austrian Journal of South-East Asian Studies (ASEAS). Issue 7.2 on Imagining Indonesia includes Emily's article "Returning to the Kampung Halaman: Limitations of Cosmopolitan Transnational Aspirations among Hakka Chinese Indonesians Overseas." U of T Magazine Highlights Max Friesen's Research

The Winter 2015 edition of U of T Magazine features an article about Prof. Max Friesen's excavations along the Mackenzie River. This past June, Prof. Friesen's research team discovered a perfectly preserved cruciform pit house. Approximately 400 years old, the discovery could change our understanding of Canada's Arctic peoples. Read more here.

PhD Candidate Omri Grinberg Publishes Book Chapter

PhD Candidate Omri Grinberg has published a chapter, based on his MA thesis research, titled "Palestinian 'Children of the Junction': Contested Borders and Representations" in Children and Borders edited by Spyros Spyrou and Miranda Christou (Palgrave Macmillan, 2014).

Awards & Funding Opportunities

Request for Proposals – Germany/Europe Fund

The Faculty of Arts & Science invites proposals for the 2014-15 Germany/Europe Fund competition. The purpose of the Fund is to promote innovative programming, course-based enrichments or research initiatives that support undergraduate, graduate and faculty activities with a clear German/European component. Examples of such activities might include:

- joint projects or courses with German/European partners
- support for student-led initiatives
- development of institutional partnerships or collaboration by individuals or groups
- activities that support new or ongoing collaborative research

This list is meant to be illustrative only; applicants are encouraged to submit creative proposals that are in keeping with the spirit and objectives of the Fund. Proposals are solicited from students and faculty up to a maximum request of $15,000. Funds will be available for the period May 1, 2015 – April 30, 2016. $100,000 is allocated for this competition for 2014-15.

Proposal Requirements

Proposals should be submitted using the application form, taking into consideration the following criteria:

- Support is targeted to creative and original activities, including interdisciplinary activities.
- Proposed projects must have a measurable impact beyond those who receive the funding.
- First preference will be given to those who have not already received Faculty funding.
- Projects involving undergraduates must have on-site supervision by a faculty member with a continuous undergraduate appointment to the Faculty of Arts & Science (St. George).
- Students may not miss a class or exams to participate in Faculty-funded programs.

Applicants must be current Arts & Science (St. George) degree students in good standing, or faculty with a continuous undergraduate appointment to a St. George academic unit at the time the proposed activity takes place.

Submission Process:

Proposals should be submitted to the department chair for approval. Department of Anthropology deadline for submission of proposals to the Department Chair - January 16, 2015 - submit either a hard copy in person to Ms Kristy Bard, Room AP 268, 19 Russell Street or by email: anthro.officeofthechair@utoronto.ca

Further information

An information session will be offered on January 13 at 4:00 pm in Sidney Smith, Room 2098. Please register for this session by sending your name and department, college or program to fas.internationalprograms@utoronto.ca with “GEF” in the subject line. Information and the application form are also available here. Should you have any questions, please contact MP Stevens, Director, International Programs and Partnerships at: mp.stevens@utoronto.ca or 416 946-5509.

Call for Nominees, U of T's 2015 IDERD Campaign & Award Recognition

In support of the International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (IDERD) on March 21st, we would like to recognize those staff, faculty and student members who have contributed to the effort of eliminating racial discrimination and advancing anti-racism. Support this initiative by nominating any U of T faculty, staff and student members who you feel have contributed to this effort. You may submit up to two nominations by the deadline of February 9, 2015. Further information is available here.

U of T Early Career Teaching Award and Teaching Fellowships

This award recognises faculty who demonstrate an exceptional commitment to student learning, pedagogical engagement and teaching innovation. Open to assistant professors in the tenure stream and lecturers in the promotion stream who are within the first five years of their academic appointment, and have completed two years of teaching at U of T. Up to four awards of $3,000 each will be offered annually. Please visit the University of Toronto Early Career Teaching Award webpage on the Provost's website for info on the award and guidelines to prepare a nomination package.

The Early Career Teaching Award winners and the Teaching Fellows will be determined by a selection committee chaired by the Vice-President and Provost (or Designate). The deadline to receive nominations is February 13, 2015. Enquiries regarding the Award and Fellowships should be directed to Kim Derrick, Special Projects Officer, Office of the Vice-President and Provost at 416-946-0075 or awards.provost@utoronto.ca

Call for Residential Scholar Applications, School of Anthropology, University of Arizona

We invites scholars from all anthropological subdisciplines to apply to the Residential Scholar Program which offers the scholar residence in the School's beautifully restored adobe home. During residency, the scholar will be expected to contribute to the teaching mission in the School through a lecture, workshop, or other form of scholarly interaction. Proposed residencies are by semesters of fall, spring, summer, or a combination of two or all three semesters. The fall semester starts in August/September; spring semester in January; and summer in May/June. If you are interested in any portion then you should submit your application by March 14th of the previous year as most considerations will be made at that time. After selections are made, should there be any vacancies for the spring and summer semesters then an additional call will be made. An application should include a CV and a letter of interest that explains the contribution the applicant will make to the School's scholarly community. Upcoming Conferences & Workshops

Diasporic Intimacies: Queer Filipinos/as and Canadian Imaginaries, January 23, 2015, OCAD, Room 190

This conference places emerging and established scholars in Filipino, Asian North American and Queer Studies in conversation with artists, front-line community workers, and community members. Participants will address specific concerns and topics that are relevant to LGBTQ Filipinos/as in Canada, and will attempt to intervene in dialogues around policy, integration, and settlement. Further info at <http://www.queerfilipinosincanada.ca/>

Funding Opportunities from the Wenner-Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research, Online Seminar, January 28, 2015

This one-hour online seminar will introduce participants to the Wenner-Gren Foundation, its unique history, and its role in funding international anthropology, including archaeology. Participants will come away with an understanding of the funding opportunities from Wenner-Gren and how to write a successful Wenner-Gren application--particularly important in view of the fact that the Foundation's success rate is only 15%. Attendees will have the opportunity to ask specific questions about the Foundation and all aspects of the application, review, and award process. Further info here.

Health Disparities in Aging, Association for Anthropology and Gerontology Bi-Annual Workshop Conference, February 5-7, 2015, Miami

The AAGE conference is a small-scale meeting devoted to anthropological approaches to aging research, with ample opportunities for interaction and discussions without the distractions of a larger conference. This year's conference theme is "Health Disparities in Aging." We will consider entries on aging among minority groups, the experience of aging among immigrants, and other vulnerable populations around the world. 3rd Oxford Interdisciplinary Desert Conference, April 16-17, 2015, University of Oxford

Join us at the School for Geography and the Environment at Oxford University for the 3rd Oxford Interdisciplinary Desert Conference. The event received a Wenner-Gren grant to bring 10 anthropologists from Asian drylands to the conference. Information and registration: <http://www.geog.ox.ac.uk/events/deserts/>

This event provides a forum for researchers and those interested in desert and dryland environments and societies to present, discuss and debate dryland themes and research. Currently desert issues are atomized in universities, international and governmental organizations and local settings; the conference brings together people researching, working and living across the world's desert and semi-desert regions. The conference focuses on exchanging ideas through talks, discussion sessions and working groups. We look forward to seeing you at the conference.

Current Archaeological Prospection Advances for Non-Destructive Investigations in the 21st Century, May 25-29, 2015, Kansas

The National Park Service's 2015 workshop on archaeological prospection techniques will be held at the Tobias-Thompson Complex sites in Rice County, Kansas. This workshop is designed to provide a practical application of geophysical equipment and aerial photographic techniques available for the identification, evaluation, and ultimately, the conservation and protection of cultural resources. The field exercises associated with the course will concentrate on the application of these techniques to archeological investigations. Instruction will be given in the use, processing, and interpretation of data from magnetometers, conductivity meters, resistivity meters, ground penetrating radar, metal detectors, and magnetic susceptibility instruments and their applications to non-destructive subsurface investigations. The major emphasis of the training will be on the field use of the equipment. Instruction will also be offered in the use of and interpretation of aerial photographic techniques, and in the use of low altitude large scale aerial reconnaissance.

Co-sponsors for the workshop include the National Park Service's Midwest Archeological Center and the National Center for Preservation Technology and Training, the Department of Anthropology at Wichita State University, and the Archaeological Division of the Kansas State Historical Society. The workshop will present lectures on the theory of operation, methodology, processing, and interpretation with on-hands use of the equipment in the field. There is a registration charge of $475.00. Application forms are available on the Midwest Archeological Center's web page.

Field Schools

Off the Beaten Track Summer School for Anthropologists

We are part of a social science research unit at the University of Leuven (Belgium), and we are pleased to send details about our Anthropological Summer School in Malta, Europe. The summer school is primarily directed toward ethnography, sociology and socio-cultural anthropology students (undergraduate and graduate level); however, all levels of researchers have found it useful over the past ten years. All updated information regarding the project can be reviewed on our website: www.anthropologyfieldschool.org. The project flyer can be viewed here. More info on our scholarship grants can be found at here. If you have any questions about the program, or us, feel free to contact us at vanlangendonckm@anthropologyfieldschool.org

This field school in Malta will include a workshop on Sustainability Agriculture and Resource Management, led by Candace A. Skinner. separate workshop will help to direct students interested in focusing on environmental, agricultural and political topics surrounding sustainability and resource management on the island of Gozo (Malta, Europe). Students will work one-on-one with researchers and staff members to narrow down a topic and perform guided field research. This workshop is meant for students of all levels interested in environmental issues to gain hands-on experience with knowledgeable researchers. Click here for more info.

Roman Field School at Cerro de la Muela, Spain

Since 1998 we offer to Spanish and foreign students the experience of learning real archaeological work.

We teach the practice of archeology by providing our participants with all the basics skills they will need when they face their own excavations. This experience will introduce them to the necessities of working outdoors and the adventure of discovering by being involved in the daily life of a foreign country with different language, culture and history.

The directors of Cerro de la Muela are also the directors of ArqueoExperiences: Dr. Dionisio Urbina Martínez and Catalina Urquijo . We have broad professional experience on Cultural Resources Management, direction of archaeological diggings from 1990, and Field Schools from 1998. Some of our research about roman world and Iron Age in the center of Spain can be seen in: <http://ucm.academia.edu/DionisioUrbinaMartinez>

Our field school takes place at a Roman settlement located in the center of Spain (Cuenca). It is a most interesting site placed between the roman cities of Segobriga and Eracavica. In the site highlights a quadrangular building of unknown function that could have served as a military garrison, as an horreum militaris or as a place where to transform Japis specularis, the first known crystal to be used in windows, which brought economic prosperity to the region in the time of Augustus.

Dubai Expedition 2015, Sanisera Archaeology Institute for International Field Schools

Over the years more than 2000 students have participated in the Sanisera Field School and have made many important finds in the Roman city and necropolis of Sanisera. We are not only in Spain, but we also have field works in Greece, Portugal, France, UK, Turkey, Italy, Croatia and United Arab Emirates. We offer students more than 20 courses that can enrich their CVs, validate university credits and get recommendation letters to enter the job market or get into prestigious scientific research centers. Check now our 2015 offer!!

Don't forget to get the information of the absolutely outstanding field school in Pompeii where we will study 15 casts of the bodies of dead people that have been discovered in Pompeii.

On the other hand we are excited to inform you about the International Expedition that we will organize to Dubai (United Arab Emirates) with The Government of Dubai Municipality during the first half of 2015. The Sanisera Archaeology Institute has opened a period to select a group of volunteers specialized in archaeology capable of performing field work excavating and studying the materials in the laboratory. This expedition is 100% financed and therefore there is no cost for volunteers to participate, including the trip from your home to the site in Dubai (maximum $800), meals, transportation and accommodation. If you are a motivated candidate who wants to experience with your hands on a dig and wish to cooperate as volunteer in an international team, this project is for you. Italy-Pran'e Siddi Field School

We are delighted that the Pran'e Siddi field school will run again this year, focusing on find processing and lab training. Pran'e Siddi, or the Siddi Plateau, is a high basaltic plateau located in the south-central region of the island of Sardinia. The area around Siddi was inhabited by prehistoric villagers beginning in the Neolithic period (ca. 4000-3200 BCE). Previous archaeological work in the area has suggested that the Nuragic leaders may have been using unsustainable agricultural practices to gain wealth and support their power. This project aims to test this model through intensive survey and geoarchaeological investigations at the Siddi Plateau.

For the 2015 season, the focus will be on lab work and analysis of the many artifacts and ecofacts collected during survey in previous years. Students will learn how to record and study animal bones, pottery, lithics, sediments and other objects. This field school is directed by Dr. Emily Holt (SUNY Buffalo). An environmental archaeologist with zooarchaeology specialization, Dr. Holt is presently doing her Post Doc work at the Institute for European and Mediterranean Archaeology at SUNY Buffalo. In the video below, Dr. Holt talks about the site, and answers questions about archaeological practice in the field.
