First U of T Anthropology PhD Graduate Turns 95 March 10

In 1956, under the supervision of Prof. T.F. McIlwraith, Morton I. Teicher became the first person to obtain a PhD in Anthropology at the University of Toronto. His thesis was titled Windigo psychosis: a study of a relationship between belief and behaviour among the Indians of Northeastern Canada. Dr. Teicher was a part-time student in our department, who had been studying since 1949 while also being a faculty member in Social Work and Psychiatry. At the time, the Anthropology Department consisted of four faculty: T.F. McIlwraith (Chair), G. Gordon Brown, Edmund S. Carpenter, and Norman Emerson. Dr. Teicher studied under each of them and maintained a relations with Dr. Carpenter until his death in 2011. After earning his PhD, Dr. Teicher became Founding Dean of Social Work at Yeshiva University, New York, and later joined the University of North Carolina, where he retired in 1985 as Dean Emeritus, School of Social Work. We have posted Dr. Teicher's biography from Who's Who in America on our website here. As Prof. Emeritus Teicher approaches his 95th birthday, we here at Anthropology are enormously proud of the accomplishments of our first PhD graduate, and his important place in our department's history, which you can learn more about here.

Prof. Liye Xie Co-Authors Paper in American Antiquity

Prof. Liye Xie is the first author on a paper published in the January 2015 edition of American Antiquity (80:1, pp 67-88). "Labor Costs for Prehistoric Earthwork Construction: Experimental and Archaeological Insights from the Lower Yangzi Basin, China" examines choices of earth-working tools made by Neolithic Chinese populations in the Hemudu Culture (7000-5000B.P.). Click here to learn more.

PhD Alum Adam Allentuck Publishes Paper in Journal of Social Archaeology

Adam Allentuck (PhD, 2013) has published an article appearing in the Journal of Social Archaeology (2015, Vol. 15(1), pp 94-115) on "Temporalities of human-livestock relationships in the late prehistory of the southern Levant." The paper can be read on Adam's academia.edu page here. Adam is currently a postdoctoral fellow at the Institute of Archaeology, University College London.

Prof. Pamela Klassen Wins Major German Grant

Congratulations to Anthropology Cross-Appointment Pamela Klassen for being rewarded a €250,000 grant by Germany's Humboldt Foundation for a five-year collaborative research project on the intersection between multiculturalism, religion and public memory. Learn more here.

National Science Foundation Awards Grant for 3-Year Field School in Hungary

Current Sessional Lecturer and former postdoc Paul Duffy and his US collaborator (Dr. Julia Giblin) have been awarded a major grant by the National Science Foundation to run a 3-year field school in Hungary from 2015-17. The grant will be run out of Quinnipiac University in Connecticut, and focus on research at the Bronze Age cemetery of Békés 103. Applications for the field school are now being accepted (applicants must be US citizens). See <http://bakota.net/> for more info.

Awards & Funding Opportunities

Anthropology of Public Policy Award

The American Anthropological Association (AAA) Committee on Public Policy (CoPP) is pleased to announce the establishment of a biennial award, the AAA Anthropology in Public Policy Award (AiPP), to honor anthropologists whose work has had a significant, positive influence on the course of government decision-making and action. Public policy is broadly defined to include measures created by any level of government and addressing the full range of contemporary human problems. Starting in 2013, the award will be conferred every other year in rotation with the AAA Solon T. Kimball award. Winners will be invited to give a lecture at the AAA annual meeting where their award will be announced and they will receive $500 and a commemorative plaque. Nominations must be submitted by March 30, 2015. Further details at <http://www.aaanet.org/cmtes/ppc/upload/CoPP-AiPP-Notice-2015.pdf>

Perfect Storms: Doctoral Scholarships at the University of Edinburgh

The University of Edinburgh invites applications from prospective doctoral scholars with projects focused on the perfect storms which threaten to disrupt and destabilise the lives of the world's poorest and most vulnerable people. The Perfect Storm Scholars will be hosted by the University of Edinburgh's Global Academies, which work to equip tomorrow's doctoral graduates with the interdisciplinary research expertise to contribute to the world's most complex problems. Each Perfect Storm scholar will be part of a dynamic interdisciplinary research culture, receiving specialist training through regular interdisciplinary masterclasses, a 'perfect storm' seminar series, and an annual summer research 'sand pit'. The aim is to equip researchers able to grapple with complex problems, work comfortably across disciplines, and undertake innovative, impactful research.

The Leverhulme Trust

The Scholarships will pay UK/EU/International fees per academic session and the remainder can be used for living and research costs. Applications due March 6, 2015. Further info: <http://www.ed.ac.uk/about/edinburgh-global/academies/leverhulme-scholarships>

School of Anthropology Residential Scholar Program, University of Arizona

The School of Anthropology invites scholars from all anthropological subdisciplines to apply to the Residential Scholar Program which offers the scholar residence in the School's beautifully restored adobe home, consisting of a living room (with a working corner fireplace), kitchen, bedroom, bath and an enclosed porch that is ideal for a home office. The scholar will have broadband Internet throughout the complex and, except for long distance calls, the Program will pay utilities. During residency, the scholar will be expected to contribute to the teaching mission in the School of Anthropology through a lecture, workshop, or other form of scholarly interaction on University main campus and to give a public lecture at the University Indian Ruin site. Primary Deadline is March 14, 2015. Further info: <http://anthropology.arizona.edu/node/405>

Department Award: Anthropology Teaching Assistant of the Year

The Department of Anthropology would like to recognize an outstanding Teaching Assistant for 2014-15. We welcome nominations from faculty, course instructors, graduate/undergraduate students and staff. The Department will award the successful winner a $200 prize and display a professional photo of the winner in our Administration Offices. The deadline for nominations is March 6, 2015. One winner will be chosen by the Anthropology Executive from all eligible submissions.

General criteria/eligibility:

Teaching Assistants in CUPE 3902 Unit I at any campus (St. George, UTM, UTSC) who have performed TA duties for the Department of Anthropology between September 1, 2014 and April 30, 2015 and who:

- engage undergraduate students with enthusiasm and provide meaningful feedback through excellent
- communication skills
- demonstrate creativity and innovation in the classroom
- demonstrate good organizational methods and submit grades in a timely fashion
- are responsible and dependable

Please provide a one page nomination letter/email addressing each of the criteria above to diane.yeager@utoronto.ca. One winner will be chosen by the Anthropology Executive from all eligible submissions.

Field Schools, Internships

Jucu Necropolis Excavation and Bioarchaeology Field School

Transylvania Bioarchaeology, in collaboration with the Romanian Institute of Archaeology and Art History (Cluj-Napoca), are pleased to announce that applications are now being accepted for the Jucu Necropolis Excavation and Bioarchaeology Field School! This field school is unique in that it personally trains all participants both in the excavation of human skeletal remains and the full suite of proper (and ethical) bioarchaeological analyses on those individuals excavated. We are also delighted to welcome our special guest, eminent bioarchaeologist Prof. Charlotte Roberts to the field this year, who will be lecturing on bioarchaeology and palaeopathology, and lending her expertise to students in the field. For more information or to apply, please see our website: <http://www.transylvaniabioarchaeology.org/>

Cultural & Forensic Anthropology Workshops on Mass Grave Excavation, July 6-31, 2015, OSA Field Institute, Costa Rica

This workshop will approach the excavation of mass graves from an integrated, interdisciplinary perspective. It takes place in a dynamic primary rainforest where students will learn the practical issues with forensic investigation in an environmentally and culturally complex context. It includes both a cultural and physical component with emphasis on integration of the two sub-disciplines. It will be structured in such a way that participants will focus on their area of interest. This workshop will benefit both students (undergraduate as well as graduate level) and professionals in various fields of forensic investigation. It is highly recommended that students enroll for the full four-week program, however it is also structured in a modular format so that participants may choose those modules relevant to their interest and availability. Modules I and II are one week each, and Module III is two weeks. Further info: http://www.osafieldinstitute.org/july_mass_graves

United Nations International Development & Diplomacy Internship Program

Now in its 19th year of operation, the International Development & Diplomacy Internship Programme (IDDIP) (formerly known as the UNPPP), is honored to be able to continue investing in the future of Canadian global citizens. As one of the United Nations Association in Canada's prestigious programmes, the IDDIP provides a unique avenue for qualified and motivated Canadian graduates and professionals to participate in the United Nations system as Junior Professional Consultants (JPCs). Can you see yourself working in a UN office promoting human rights, the rule of law, and sustainable development?

UNA-Canada's prestigious and competitive IDDIP offers self-funded, six-month deployments providing successful applicants with invaluable, demanding, deeply meaningful work experience, as well as a proven bridge to employment. The Programme also provides professional development support before, during and after your deployment. UNA-Canada has sent hundreds of JPCs to UN agencies worldwide with over 94% of those JPCs finding related work within three months of their completed internship

Application deadline is March 16, 2015. Further details at <http://unac.org/unac-projects/international-internships/>
