Tool Making Arose Earlier Among Human Ancestors

Research conducted by PhD Alumna Tracy Kivell has revealed that tool making arose earlier among human ancestors than previously thought. Check out the January 24 episode of Quirks & Quarks, where Bob MacDonald spoke to Dr. Kivell about this fascinating research. See also <http://fw.to/oYyCIDU>. Dr. Kivell received her PhD from our department in 2007 under the supervision of Prof. David Begun. She is currently a Junior Researcher in the Department of Human Evolution, Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology.

Help the AGSU Celebrate National Anthropology Day!

National Anthropology Day is fast approaching! Help your AGSU celebrate on Feb 19th by digging into your archives. We want to see your favourite anthropology photos. Email, insta, facebook and tweet us your favourite anthropology field, lab, or miscellaneous photos. We want to post these photos as an informal slideshow for the new AGSU website. You can send us photos on a variety of social media platforms.

New AAA Ethics Blog

Submit blog posts on issues related to research/professional ethics to the new Ethics Blog of the American Anthropology Association. Blog submissions should be about 500 words in length. These can be thought pieces, bringing ethical questions and queries to the broader community. This is an especially good opportunity for graduate students to get involved. Additionally, if you have published or are about to publish work that relates to anthropological ethics, this could be a good place to write a shorter, more accessible version that could contain a hyperlink to the full article.

The Canadian Anthropology Society makes available a limited number of travel grants to attend the annual conference. The awards are available to doctoral students registered in Canadian Anthropology departments. Applications must be received by email before 10 March 2015, or by mail postmarked no later than March 7, 2015. See the website for more information.

U of T Early Career Teaching Award

The Provost has announced an Early Career Teaching Award, to recognize faculty members who demonstrate an exceptional commitment to student learning, pedagogical engagement, and teaching innovation. Tenure-stream Assistant Professors and Lecturers in the promotion stream are eligible for this award, which supports priorities in the areas of teaching at the level of the Faculty and the University.

Nomination packages must be submitted to the Provost's Office by Friday, February 13, 2015. The terms of the fellowship and instructions for preparing a nomination package can be found on the Provost's website.

If you are preparing a nomination for a faculty member in your unit, please inform the Dean's Office by contacting Amanda Bello at amanda.bello@utoronto.ca by Monday, February 9, 2015. We will advise you on support from our office on the nomination process. Please contact vice dean.academic@utoronto.ca if you have questions about this award.

Doctoral Scholarships in Transcultural Studies

The Graduate Programme for Transcultural Studies of the Cluster of Excellence "Asia and Europe in a Global Context" at Heidelberg University welcomes applications for four doctoral scholarships beginning in the winter semester 2015/16. The programme offers a monthly scholarship of 1200 Euro. It further supports scholarship holders in framing their research through advanced courses, individual supervision and mentoring. Half of the scholarships are reserved for young scholars from Asia. Applicants are expected to propose a doctoral project with a strong affiliation to one of the four research areas of the Cluster. They must hold an M.A. or equivalent in a discipline of the humanities or social sciences with an above-average grade. Applications, including a CV, a letter of intention, a project proposal, a schedule for the dissertation, and two letters of recommendation are submitted through an Online Application System.

After an initial evaluation and selection, applicants will be asked to get in contact with possible supervisors at the Cluster of Excellence to discuss their project proposal. The most promising candidates will be invited to present their projects to the selection committee in Heidelberg around mid-May. Shortly after this, the scholarships will be awarded. The deadline for applications is March 15, 2015. For more information about the Graduate Programme for Transcultural Studies and the scholarships see <http://www.asia-europe.uni-heidelberg.de/en/gpts> or send an e-mail to application-gpts@asia-europe.uni-hei1983delberg.de

Fellowship in Ethnographic Writing, 2015-16

The Centre for Ethnography (CE) at the University of Toronto Scarborough (UTSC) is accepting applications for its annual Fellowship in Ethnographic Writing. Writing is a key component of the work of an anthropologist, but it takes time and benefits from some distance from the fieldwork itself, and from other obligations. In recognition of this fact the CE introduced a Fellowship in Ethnographic Writing in 2010. We are now seeking applications for the academic year 2015-16, to be held at UTSC in either the fall or winter term (to be determined by the CE).

Recipients of this award are expected to devote their time fully to writing and may not teach or hold any other post-doctoral funding or form of employment during the tenure of the award. They are expected to attend all talks and colloquia at the CE, to work several days a week on the UTSC campus, and to contribute a presentation of their work in progress to the colloquium. In addition, CE Fellows must be available to coach students completing an undergraduate writing assignment, in tandem with a professor teaching a core introductory course. This work will be limited to 5 hours in total.

Applicants should submit their curriculum vita and a statement of no more than 5 double-spaced pages that describes their writing project. Please include a project timeline and articulate precise goals for the duration of the Fellowship. All applicants must have completed their doctoral fieldwork and have already submitted significant portions of their dissertation to their doctoral committee. Explicit attention to questions of genre, narrative, and audience are welcome but not essential. The current stipend is set at $10,000 for a period of twelve weeks.

The Centre for Ethnography Fellowship in Ethnographic Writing is open to applicants who are (or were) enrolled in doctoral programs at Canadian Universities as well as to Canadian citizens studying elsewhere. All applicants must be either in the final stages of completing the doctoral thesis, or have received their PhDs within the past year (2014 or later).

The closing date for this competition is March 1, 2015. Please send all applications, as well as the names of two referees, electronically to the Centre for Ethnography at centreforethnography@utsc.utoronto.ca.

$3000 Undergraduate Scholarship for International Health Research

The Discovery Fund is a scholarship program that aims to encourage interest in international health research among non-medical undergraduate students. Students will have the opportunity to engage in an academic learning experience that includes a structured summer project on health issues in an international setting under the supervision of a U of T faculty member. Upon completion of the project, the student should have obtained a knowledge base that would be unobtainable in the standard curriculum in Canada. This fund is limited to undergraduate students at U of T. The value of the scholarship is up to $3000. We are funding up to 5 projects. Further details here. DEADLINE: March 6th, 2015 (11:59:59 PM)

Upcoming Conferences & Workshops

Decolonizing Development: Opportunities and Alternatives Post-2015, International Development Conference, February 7-8, 2015 UTSC

We hope to dismantle (neo) colonial approaches to both development theory and practice, as we attempt to 'decolonize' the praxis of development. We will be hosting 12 thematic discussions, 6 workshops, a large-scale debate, and two keynote presentations. In addition, we are hosting a Human Library themed around the United Nations Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), a presentation of the Global Poverty Consensus Report, an art competition and a Gala. This event is welcome to all. Tickets are $40. Please check with your UTSC student group to see if you are eligible for a discount. To register and for more information on our programming and extensive list of speakers visit our website at www.utoronto-idc.org

DANTA Tropical Biology Field Courses 2015

Danta is pleased to announce our 2015 field courses in tropical biology. Our course are intended for undergraduates or early graduate level students who have a keen interest in tropical ecosystems and conservation, but have little or no experience of working in a tropical environment. Participants may enroll on either a credit or non-credit basis.

DANTA operates on a cooperative and collaborative teaching model with multiple international instructors on each course. Co-instruction allows for more individualized instruction, and the sharing and appreciation of different ideas. Visiting scholars are often incorporated into the curriculum to broaden student experience.

Centre for Social Wellbeing Internship & Field Methods Summer Solstice Seminar, June 7-27, 2015, Peru

The Center for Social Well Being celebrates 14 years offering our program in interdisciplinary qualitative field methods, as well as Spanish and Quechua language classes, with a continued internship option in the Peruvian Andes. This year we offer our June Solstice seminar, a 3 week training program after which students may work and/or pursue their own research objectives in health, education, agriculture, social development, with municipal institutes and civic organizations. Length of the post-training internship is adapted to students' needs with respect to academic and professional requirements. This combined undergrad and graduate seminar is held at the center's rural base, an adobe lodge on an ecological ranch in the Cordillera Blanca mountain range. The training program tuition fee is $4000 US dollars that includes all in-country travel, food and accommodations at the rural center, and course materials. The program is under the direction of Applied Medical Anthropologist, Patricia J. Hammer, Ph.D., and Flor de María Barreto Tosi, Ecologist and Field Coordinator. Please contact us for other potential program dates for 2015.
