Prof. Edward Swenson Appointed Acting Director of the Archaeology Centre

Congratulations to Prof. Edward Swenson, who will be taking over as Acting Director of the Archaeology Centre while Prof. Michael Chazan is on leave January 1-June 30, 2016.

Dylan Shaul Wins Richard B. Lee Award

Congratulations to Anthropology undergraduate student Dylan Shaul for being awarded the 2015 Richard B. Lee Award! This award is given annually to the best undergraduate paper in Critical Anthropology written for a course in the department.

The awards committee felt Dylan's essay, "The Gift of the Minga: Obligation, Time, and Resistance in the Andes" stood out on the basis of its sophisticated reading of the theory of the gift, and its critical reengagement with that concept in light of Andean ethnography. The essay was written for ANT378H, Gift, Money and Finance.

Prof. Tania Li Awarded Dean's International Initiative Funding

Congratulations to Prof. Tania Li for being awarded $10,000 for her proposed project in Kerala, India. The research project, Overcoming Social Exclusion in India, will give experiential learning opportunities to four lucky Anthropology undergraduates. This will be the second year in a row that students were supported by DIIF to participate in this internship opportunity in collaboration with the Centre for Research and Education for Social Transformation (CREST).

Jessica Cook, Connie Gagliardi, and Andrew Harris Awarded Study Elsewhere LCTL Funding

Congratulations to our graduate students who have received funding from the Faculty of Arts & Science Study Elsewhere of Less Commonly Taught Languages. This fund provides graduate students the opportunity to study a language required for their research and not regularly taught at U of T. Jessica Cook was supported for her study of Maori in New Zealand, Connie Gagliardi was awarded funding to study Colloquial Palestinian Dialect in the West Bank/Israel, and Andrew Harris will receive funding to study Khmer in the U.S.

PhD Student Kristen Bos Receives Outstanding Native Student of the Year Award

Congratulations to Anthropology PhD Student Kristen Bos, who will be honoured at the January 13, 2016 President's Award for the Outstanding Native Student of the Year Ceremony and Reception. Kristen will be honoured as one of the 2013-14 recipients, along with three other award recipients from that year and 2014-15. The ceremony and reception is scheduled for 2pm on January 13 at First Nations House, 563 Spadina Ave., 3rd Fl. RSVP to fnh.info@utoronto.ca or call 416-978-8227 for further details.

ANTI199 Story Archive, Living at the Water's Edge in Toronto

ANTI199 students of Prof. Bonnie McElhinny's Living at the Water's Edge in Toronto class last term have had their stories gathered as part of the course posted on the Lake Ontario Waterkeepers (LOW) website. The 199 course introduced students to anthropology by using a wide range of media, field trips, and independent research to explore how people think about, imagine, and interact with water. Students in the course shared their personal Watermarks and became Watermark collectors themselves. Read their stories here.

The Strategy of Style: Music, Struggle, and the Aesthetics of Sahrawi Nationalism in Exile by Violeta Posada and Vivian Solana

PhD candidate Vivian Solana has co-authored an article which engages the dialectics of nationalism and exile in Saharawi music. Appearing in Transmodernity: Journal of Peripheral Cultural Production of the Luso-Hispanic World [5(3): 40-61], the authors argue that the flourishing of a unique Saharawi musical style during war, exodus, and more recent developments since the 1991 ceasefire, has been instrumental in creating a strong international Saharawi discourse. The article can be read online here.

The Geometric Kebaran occupation and lithic assemblage of Wadi Mataha, Southern Jordan by Danielle A. Macdonald, Michael Chazan and Joel C. Janetski

PhD Alumna Danielle Macdonald (PhD, 2013) has co-authored a paper appearing in Quaternary International with her former supervisor, Prof. Michael Chazan, and another colleague at Bingham Young University. The paper explores the Geometric Kebaran component of Wadi Mataha, focusing on the lithic assemblage and the recovered human burial to understand regional mobility and movement during the Middle Epipalaeolithic. It can be read online here.

'Prophet but not for Profit': Value and Virtue in Ghanaian Pentecostalism by Girish Daswani

Prof. Girish Daswani has published an article in the December 2015 issue of The Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute regarding the importance of Pentecostal practices in understanding the qualitative aspects of value in Ghana. The paper demonstrates how practices relating to wealth accumulation and redistribution are in interaction with ethical evaluations about the character of charismatic Christian prophets. The awards are for studies and research, a combination of studies and language studies, or language studies only. The duration of the scholarship is 4-12 months for students and 2-12 months for professionals, professors and researchers.

A number of short-term, non-degree-seeking awards are offered to Canadian academics, students and professionals who wish to study and/or do research in subject areas related to China at participating Chinese institutions. Scholarships are available for studies and research, for a combination of studies and language studies, or for language studies only at participating Chinese institutions. Deadline for applications: March 10, 2016. Further details here.

Richard F. Salisbury Award

Eligibility: Applications can be made by any student member of CASCA undertaking doctoral level research in the field of anthropology at a Canadian university. Preference will be given to those who have completed their comprehensive examinations, have approved thesis proposals and are within one year of beginning fieldwork. CASCA recognizes that some eligible candidates may not be studying in anthropology programs, however all candidates must be members of CASCA when making their applications. The intent of the award is to assist with fieldwork expenses.

Criteria: An outstanding academic record and an excellent research proposal with innovative scholarly import and social relevance.
Value: $2000

Deadline: All application materials must be submitted electronically by 1 February 2016 to Pauline McKenzie Aucoin - CASCA Secretary. Further info: <http://www.cas-sca.ca/about/prizes-and-awards/salisbury-award/salisbury-call-for-nominations>

Field & Summer Schools

Institute of Technology Sligo's Archaeological Field Summer School at Moygara Castle

The 2016 summer school will comprise two separate courses, each worth 6 ECTS credits, transferable to 3 semester hours/credits in the North American system. The first 2 week course will commence on the 6th of June and will involve joining IT Sligo archaeology students on their annual training excavation at Moygara County Sligo, a 14-17th century castle linked historically to the O'Gara clan, medieval rulers of the area. This excavation has been running at a small scale since 2013 and will be expanded this year to fully investigate the hall uncovered in 2015.

The second course, also two weeks, will start on the 20th of June and combine lectures and guided fieldtrips to introduce students to the prehistoric and medieval archaeology of Ireland. Further info: <http://itsligo.ie/summer-school/>

Late Pleistocene Archaeology Field School in Alaska

The Adelphi University, Department of Anthropology welcomes applications for our 2016 summer field school in Alaska. Research will focus on the newly discovered Holzman site along Shaw Creek where large mammal bones, mammoth ivory fragments, and stone tools dating to the end of the Ice Age were found last summer. Join our research team in the scenic Tanana Valley as we investigate the question, who were the First Alaskans?

Taught by experienced faculty with student-instructor ratios among the lowest available (3:1), this program emphasizes a wide range of experiential learning opportunities. For more information about the Adelphi in Alaska Archaeological Field School please visit the website, or email Brian Wygal (bwyg@adelphi.edu) for an application packet.

Mediating Ethnography: Examining and Creating Media Practices in Gozo, Off the Beaten Track Field School Workshop

From Gozo's low-power Catholic community radio stations to ethnographers' use of laptops and cell phones, media flow throughout anthropologists' field experiences in Malta. This module consists of six workshops that are an introduction to the methods and theories of media anthropology. Focused on the ways that media production and consumption are intimately connected through communication practices, media anthropology forces us to think about the ways that media technologies shape the ethnographic worlds we create – and how to imagine different worlds, as well. Through field trips, collaborative multimedia making, workshops, and one-on-one sessions, we will develop methodological strategies for examining and evoking mediated life in Gozo.

Other projects are also available, visit <http://anthropologyfieldschool.org/optionalcourses/page50/index.html> for further info.

Achill Archaeological Field School, Ireland

The Achill Archaeological Field School is the oldest and probably the foremost Field School of archaeology and anthropology in Ireland and will celebrate its 25th anniversary in 2016. The mission of the Achill Archaeological Field School is to provide a unique experience for students interested in archaeology and anthropology who wish to explore the rich cultural heritage of Achill Island on the west coast of Ireland. Institute for Field Research (IFR) Field Schools, Scholarships Available

Our field schools are affordable, and we offer a range of scholarships to deserving students. Tuition for any IFR field school covers all program expenses, including room & board, cost of credit units, insurance, field trips, and instruction. It does not include the cost of airfare to and from the field. All IFR field schools are peer-reviewed annually by members of our Board of Directors, who are some of the most academically distinguished archaeologists from universities around the world. IFR academic excellence, both in research and pedagogy, is second to none. The IFR's academic partner – Connecticut College, a highly selective liberal arts institution supporting student-faculty research – provides 8 semester credit units (12 quarter credit units) to accepted students.

Applications for the IFR 2016 scholarships are now open. A number of scholarships are available to students attending any IFR field school:

- (1) Need Based Scholarships – each providing $2,000 towards the cost of an IFR field school;
- (2) Merit Based Scholarships – each providing $2,500 towards the costs of an IFR field school;
- (3) The IFR-Balkan Heritage Foundation Scholarships – each providing $1,200 towards the cost of any joint IFR-BHF field school in Bulgaria or Macedonia – there are seven to choose from;
- (4) The IFR-SAA Historically Underrepresented Group Scholarship (HUGS) – a single $5,000 scholarship to eligible students for any of the IFR field schools; and
- (5) The Philippines-Ifugao NSF REU Scholarship – provide a selected group of students with funds to fully cover the cost of attending the Ifugao project, airfare, and a generous stipend. Eligible students are encouraged to apply to multiple IFR scholarships (NSF-REU excluded – students may apply to that program only).

We strongly encourage students who already attended an archaeological project this – or past summers – to apply to the IFR-SAA Best Paper & Poster Award. Each award is for $1,000 and will be given to the best paper and best poster presented by an undergraduate student – submitted as a single or first author – at the forthcoming SAA annual meeting in Orlando (FL). Students need not be graduates of an IFR field school, this award is open to all. Finally, we encourage students and faculty to explore our Scholarships page where we list many external grants and scholarships available to students seeking an archaeology field experience.
