Anthropology Awarded STEP Forward Funding
The Faculty of Arts and Science have awarded additional funding to our department to support the two year continuation and further development of our Experiential Learning Mentoring and Workshops Program and Welcome to the Program Reorientation Tutorials. This funding will help support TA training, preparation and teaching time for these programs, which help students better understand how to best approach their studies and the different opportunities available to them. PhD student Aleksa Alaica is our department’s STEP Forward Coordinator of these programs. Further information on STEP Forward can be found here.

Ethnography Lab Summer High School Program
The Ethnography Lab in the Department of Anthropology will be running a week-long anthropology program for high-school students interested in culture, social change, and history. Students from local high-schools will have a chance to explore the culture of Kensington Market as one of Canada’s most celebrated multicultural neighborhoods.

As they learn about the market and its place in Toronto’s changing social landscape, students will be introduced to interview techniques, archival research, field-note writing, and participant-observation. The program will be run by senior anthropology undergraduate and graduate students. Participants in grade 10, 11, and 12 are welcome to apply for this exciting intensive program, which will run from July 4-8* 2016 (to be confirmed in June 2016).

The application deadline is April 30th, 2016. This program is supported by J.P Bickell Foundation and the Archeology Centre. Space in this course will be limited to 10 students. Materials will be provided. Go to our website to apply today!

Association of Feminist Anthropology Call for Blogs
The AFA website hosts a plethora of information, from the latest book reviews to feminist anthropology syllabi, from job postings to members blogs. The AFA Web Managers are continuously looking for people to volunteer as our guest bloggers. We want to know what you are working on, and what you are thinking about! Topics are open, as long as they are related to feminist anthropology. Blog topics can range from 500-1000 words, and can be focused on fieldwork, theory, current events... whatever is on your feminist anthropological mind! Photos are welcome but not required. We will rotate blogs every three months, so please keep us in mind if you have an exciting project in the works. Feel free to browse our current blogs on the bottom of the home page for ideas. Please send your blogs to: femanth@gmail.com

Eugenia Tsao Nominates Kristy Bard for Green Ribbon Award – and She Wins!
Yours truly, had the honour of receiving the Staff Inspirational Green Ribbon Award at last week’s U of T Green Gala. Anthropology PhD Alumna Eugenia Tsao nominated Kristy for her work in the Anthropology Greenhouse and Food Garden. The awards are presented annually by the U of T Sustainability Office to celebrate sustainability champions across campus. Learn more about this year’s award recipients at http://news.utoronto.ca/u-t-honours-sustainability-champions. Now is the time to let Kristy know if you are interested in free seedlings from the greenhouse this year. Red worm wrigglers are also available for anyone interested in starting their own worm composting bin.

Recent Publications

Functionality and Morphology: Identifying S’Agricultural Tools from Among Hemudu Scapular Implements in Eastern China by Liye Xie et al.

Prof. Liye Xie is the lead author on this article appearing in the January 2016 edition of the Journal of Archaeological Method and Theory (DOI: 10.1007/s10816-015-9271-x). This article reviews research results achieved through experimentation and use-wear analysis, which help explain why Hemudu should not be labeled as a farming society. The approaches and results of Prof. Xie and her co-authors provide a solid base for re-evaluating previous research, and building a standardized database of scientific value for future evaluation and adjustment. Resisting Innovation? Learning, Cultural Evolution and the Potter’s Wheel in the Mediterranean Bronze Age by Carl Knappett

Anthropology Cross Appointment Prof. Carl Knappett has published a chapter in Cultural Phylogenetics: Concepts and Applications in Archaeology edited by L. Mendoza Straffon (Springer International Publishing Switzerland, 2016; DOI 10.1007/978-3-319-25928-4_5). In this chapter, Prof. Knappett identifies two barriers to a thorough integration of evolutionary and interpretive approaches to archaeology, and challenges the validity of neo-Darwinian biological models for explaining certain kinds of cultural change. It can be read on his academia.edu page here.

Academic Writing Residency, Rockefeller Foundation
Bellagio Centre, Lake Como, Italy
The Rockefeller Foundation

Bellagio Center’s residency program offers a superb opportunity for focused work in a serene environment that brings highly diverse cohorts of artists, academics, practitioners, and policymakers together for up to one month, fostering rich cross-cultural and interdisciplinary exchange. Diversity of culture, thought and practice is a hallmark of the program that has for decades provided residents with unparalleled opportunities to advance their work while gaining exposure to new thinking and ideas as they expand their networks internationally. Those interested in applying should visit the Bellagio Application Resource Center for additional information. Application deadline is May 2, 2016.

AAA Community Engagement Grants
American Anthropological Association

$2,000 for AAA Sections to rent offsite space for events that engage communities and extend Anthropology’s reach beyond the annual meeting. There are no restrictions on the kinds of events that may be proposed, but the funds must be used only for rental of space, and the event must be open to all AAA meeting attendees.

CE Grant proposals should include the following information: the title of the proposed event, a description of the event, the location of that event, the community partners who will be involved in/help to coordinate the event, the names and pertinent for contact persons at the event site, the names and contact information for the AAA/SMA organizer(s), and the amount of funds requested for the rental of community space. Prospective event organizer(s) are encouraged to include a rationale for the importance of the proposed activity, as part of their event description.

Please send CE Grant proposals to the SMA Program Chair and Co-Chair: Mary Anglin (manglin@uky.edu) and Athena McLean (mclea1ab@cmich.edu) no later than March 28, 2016.

The Program Committee Co-Chairs will review the applications and convey our recommendations to the SMA President, Elisa Sobo, in advance of the AAA deadline for Sections to submit a proposal: April 1, 2016. Applicants will be notified about the status of their proposals by the AAA deadline. Any questions about the AAA Community Engagement Grants should be directed to Miguel Diaz Barriga, AAA Section Convenor (miguel.diazbarriga@utrgv.edu) or Kim Baker (kabaker@americananthro.org).

AAA Committee on Gender Equity in Anthropology Award

The CoGEA Award (formerly known as the Squeaky Wheel Award), sponsored by the AAA Committee on Gender Equity in Anthropology (CoGEA), recognizes individuals whose service to the discipline (inclusive of research, teaching and mentorship) demonstrates the courage to bring to light and investigate practices in anthropology that are potentially sexist and discriminatory based on gender presentation.

Historically, this award has honored those who have acted to raise awareness of women’s contributions to anthropology, worked to identify barriers to full participation by women in anthropology, or helped to bring about significant shifts in intellectual paradigms through their anthropological research on women’s lives.

The CoGEA Award now has an even broader scope. In addition to honoring scholars who work against discrimination against women in anthropology, the committee is interested in honoring feminist scholars who work to raise awareness of discrimination in anthropology on the grounds of gender presentation of any kind.

The committee seeks nominations for scholars and practitioners from all subfields of anthropology, at stages ranging anywhere from promising mid-career to proven latecareer, who have acted to improve the status of those discriminated against on the basis of sex or gender identity in anthropology.

Nominations should be sent by May 1 to Anne Kelsey, CoGEA Liaison at akelsey@americananthro.org. Awarders and nominators will be notified by July 1. Additional details concerning the CoGEA Award and information about previous CoGEA Award winners can be found here.

Ethnography in Canada, U of T
Ethnography Lab Conference, April 15, 2016
The Ethnography Lab is pleased to announce that registration has opened for the inaugural Ethnography in Canada 2016 conference. Register here. The conference will showcase ethnographic work being conducted in Canada and foster a critical discussion of what ethnography in and of Canada is today. What forms is ethnographic work taking, within academia and outside of it? How are ethnographers conceptualizing “Canada,” and what are the key questions informing ethnographic endeavours in this space?

This conference will bring together participants from a range of backgrounds and levels of expertise, creating a space for critical discussion and learning. The day will consist of traditional panels and round tables, breakout sessions, and be rounded off with an evening of mingling. The keynote speaker is Professor Monica Heller.

Food, Feast & Famine, Leeds International Medieval Congress (IMC), July 4-7, 2016
The IMC seeks to provide an interdisciplinary forum for the discussion of all aspects of Medieval Studies. Every year, the IMC chooses a specific special thematic strand which - for 2016 - is ‘Food, Feast & Famine’. The theme has been chosen for the crucial importance of both phenomena in social and intellectual discourse, both medieval and modern, as well as their impact on many aspects of the human experience.
