AGSU MEDUSA Conference Call for Papers

Anthropology Graduate Students' Union (AGSU) at the University of Toronto invites proposals for the 3rd annual MEDUSA graduate student colloquium. The colloquium will take place on Thursday, March 19th and Friday, March 20th 2015 in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Toronto, St. George campus.

The theme of the 2015 colloquium is "Frontiers". We encourage the submission of high-quality graduate student research on any topic, but most especially those which creatively interpret issues of boundaries, migration, and motion. The colloquium is open to graduate students across disciplines and institutions. In addition to submissions from the sub-disciplines of anthropology offered at the University of Toronto (archaeology, physical anthropology, linguistic, socio-cultural and medical anthropology), we encourage submissions from other disciplines working on relevant topics related to (post)human evolution, culture, history, health, and society. Submission deadline is February 9, 2015. Further info at <http://anthropology.utoronto.ca/medusa-call-for-papers/>

Graduate Research Assistant Wanted

I am looking for a Ph.D. candidate interested in the topic, for my research on "Baroque Ethnography." The assistantship entails reading original ethnographies from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, taking notes, and discussing the readings with me. The ethnographies are of non-western peoples as well as of European country folk and Jews. Reading knowledge of French and/or German is strongly preferred, but if you can only read English and are interested then do by all means apply. There will be up to about 40 hours of work and the dates are flexible. Please apply to i.kalmar@utoronto.ca.

Thank you,
Prof. Ivan Kalmar

AAA Open Forum on Engagement with Israel and Palestine

The AAA leadership is trying to foster dialogue and information exchange among AAA members on anthropologically relevant issues related to Israel/Palestine. As such, the AAA will be holding an Open Forum on Engagement with Israel and Palestine at the upcoming Conference, to be held on Thursday, 4 December, from 1:00 to 2:15 in the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel, Ballroom Salon 2.

The frame for the discussion is: what issues related to Israel/Palestine are relevant to us as anthropologists, as members of a scholarly association, and to the AAA as an association of anthropologists?

Additional background and information regarding the format of the Forum is at:

2014 IUAES-Tourism Photography and Logo Competition

The International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences Commission on the Anthropology of Tourism \(IUAES-Tourism\) is pleased to run a photography and logo competition. We are accepting photographic depictions of anthropology of tourism 'in action', as experienced and practiced across the globe. At the same time, we welcome proposals for a logo that captures the mission of IUAES-Tourism. Photographs (with a short caption) and logos should be submitted electronically by 30 November 2014. The best photos and logo will be used on the Commission webpage and on the IUAES-Tourism social media pages and information sheets. The photographers and the logo designer will be duly acknowledged.

Winners will be announced during the special reception commemorating 40 years of anthropology of tourism during the annual meeting of the American Anthropological Association in Washington DC, USA (6 December 2014). Awards may be given in absentia if winners are unable to attend the event. Any questions about the competition should be directed to IUAES-Tourism, at yujie.zhu@anu.edu.au.

Awards & Funding Opportunities

The Society for American Archaeology Partners with the Institute for Field Research to Deliver Two New Undergraduate Awards

The Institute for Field Research (IFR) and the Society for American Archaeology (SAA) have teamed up to provide two new undergraduate student awards—one for best paper and one for best poster! Each paper and poster awardee will receive a $1000 prize provided by IFR. To further foster undergraduate participation during the Annual Meeting, the IFR will be sponsoring a morning coffee where students will be able to network with archaeologists and learn more about scholarship and fieldwork opportunities.

The submission deadline for the 2015 prizes is March 15, 2015, and all entries will be evaluated based on three overarching criteria: 1) intellectual creativity, 2) originality of topic, and 3) quality of presentation. For more details on submission guidelines and formatting, see <http://bit.ly/1yFRF4y>. To learn more about the Institute for Field Research, please visit www.ifrglobal.org. If you have any additional questions, please contact the IFR Undergraduate Awards Committee chair, Dr. Wes Bernardini, at wesley_bernardini@redlands.edu.

Newberry Library Fellowship in the Humanities

Newberry fellowships provide support for researchers who wish to use our collection. We promise you intriguing and often rare materials; a lively, interdisciplinary community of researchers; individual consultations on your research with staff curators, librarians, and other scholars; and an array of both scholarly and public programs. The Newberry administers annual competitions for both Long-Term Fellowships of 4 to 12 months and Short-Term Fellowships of 1 to 2 months.

Short-Term Fellowships are primarily intended to assist researchers who need to examine specific items in the Newberry's collection and are mostly restricted to individuals who live outside the Chicago area. Long-Term Fellowships are generally available without regard to an applicant's place of residence and are intended to support significant works of scholarship that draw on the strengths of the Newberry's collection. We are now accepting applications for the 2015-16 academic year. For more information, visit our website: www.newberry.org/fellowships

Joan Eakin Award for Methodological Excellence in a Qualitative Doctoral Dissertation

The Centre for Critical Qualitative Health Research ("CQ") is pleased to announce the Call for Applications for its annual doctoral dissertation award. The deadline for submissions is Friday December 19, 2014. Further information, including application form, can be found at <http://www.ccqhr.utoronto.ca/graduate-education/awards>

To recognize the retirement of Joan Eakin, CQ's founding director, and her contribution of time and expertise to students doing critical qualitative health research, this award was recently renamed "The Joan Eakin Award for Methodological Excellence in a Qualitative Doctoral Dissertation." Additionally, the "Fund in Social Behavioural Health Sciences in Honour of Joan Eakin" was established, from which a monetary award prize will be drawn for the next several years.

We invite you to contribute to this fund in honour of Joan Eakin's retirement and her legacy of work in critical qualitative health research, and to help support University of Toronto doctoral students who are conducting critical qualitative research on a health-related topic. To contribute to the award fund, please visit <https://donate.utoronto.ca/give/show/133>, select your gift type, and enter the dollar amount next to 'Social Behaviour and Health Sciences Fund in Honour of Joan Eakin.'

PhD Scholarships, Theology and Religious Studies, University of Leeds

Up to 18 fully-funded PhD scholarships for UK/EU students are available for 2015-16 entry, plus further scholarships for international students. Supervision expertise includes all aspects of the sociological and anthropological study of Islam and Muslims in the UK, Europe and beyond, especially fieldwork and historically based studies of local communities, key institutions and rituals, organisations and movements, as well as questions of local-global politics, public recognition and inter-religious relations. Well-qualified candidates interested in applying are advised to contact me at an early stage on s.mcloughlin@leeds.ac.uk.

First deadline is 2 FEBRUARY 2015.

Workshops & Field Schools

Doing Well by Doing Good: Anthropology, Business and Development, Graduate Masterclass, University of Edinburgh

2pm Monday 1st December – 2pm Tuesday 2nd December
This ESRC funded 1 day Graduate Masterclass will combine lectures and advanced seminars to explore what anthropology has to say about the changing role of business in international development. Through case studies and readings from South Asia, Africa and the Pacific we will explore the emergence of humanitarian business models that have led to the design of new health and energy technologies aimed at the global poor.

Limited spaces are available and accommodation and travel costs will be covered. The class will be of interest to anybody planning graduate dissertations in social anthropology, medical anthropology, anthropology and development, as well as geography and international development/development studies – MSc (Scotland), MA/MSc (England, Wales and Northern Island) - and to those thinking about pursuing PhD research projects in social anthropology and/or international development. If you would like to apply, please email edinburghmasterclass@gmail.com by 25th November. The email should include a 1 page CV and a brief accompanying paragraph (max 200 words) telling us about yourself, your current MSc programme and the kinds of future research projects you are interested in.

Summer School on Citizens Resilience in Times of Crisis, July 5-11, 2015, European University Institute

Call for applications are now open for this summer school sponsored by the LIVEWHAT project and organized at the Centre on Social Movement Studies

(COSMOS) The Summer School will address issues such as:

- How do people respond to crises in general and to the current economic crisis in particular?
- What strategies are developed to cope with the crisis in the public and in the private domain, collectively and individually, and through policies, protests and individual behaviors?
- What forms of resilience does society show in hard times?

The Summer School will bring together young scholars and more established academics interested in these issues through an intensive curriculum of lectures and workshops. Participants investigating the dynamics linking crises, policy responses, and citizens' resilience will focus on mobilization and alternative forms of action in times of economic crises.

The Summer School is open to 20 graduate students as well as early career researchers throughout Europe and beyond with a specialized interest in participation and mobilization during periods of crises in different fields of study, including political science, political sociology, political communication, and political anthropology. Applicants should email a cover letter (i.e. two pages) in which they explain how the Summer School would be beneficial to their research, a 500-word abstract of a proposed academic paper, and a curriculum vitae to livewhat.summerschool@gmail.com. The deadline for applications is the 15th of December 2014. Further info: <http://www.livewhat.unige.ch/?p=1616>

Archaeology Live! 2015

We are now taking bookings for the 2015 season of our Archaeology Live! training excavation. After the success of the 2014 season, we are very pleased to be returning to the grounds of All Saints Church, North Street, York for a second year. This will be the 15th year of Archaeology Live! which apparently makes this our crystal anniversary. Hopefully we'll have some suitably shiny finds! The dates for the 2015 season will follow the same format as last year, with three main sessions and a number of weekend courses.

The 2015 dates are as follows:

Spring session

Monday April 6th – Friday April 17th 2015

Weekend course

Saturday April 11th - Sunday April 12th 2015

Summer session

Monday June 22nd – Friday September 11th 2015

Weekend course

Saturday August 22nd- Sunday August 23rd 2015

Autumn session

An Autumn dig will be scheduled in 2015, most likely occurring in October. Please email us to express interest.

We're happy to announce that the prices will remain set at the 2014 rates. A full list of the prices for each course can be found at www.archaeologylive.wordpress.com and look for the courses listed in the menu bar.

To book a place, simply let us know the dates you would like to attend. We will then email out a booking form with information on payment options. Once that is completed, we will send out an information pack detailing how to find the site, daily schedules, etc. We're expecting a busy season, so please book early to avoid disappointment!
