Anna-Louise Crago Receives Governor General’s Award in Commemoration of the Persons Case
Congratulations to PhD Candidate Anna Louise Crago! She is one of six recipients of the 2016 Governor General’s Awards in Commemoration of the Persons Case, which honours Canadians who advance gender equality. Anna-Louise was chosen because of her two decades of work as a human rights advocate, social service-provider and researcher alongside, and as part of, sex worker and street-involved communities. Prof. Gillian Gillison Wins 2016 AAS Article Prize for Oceania Article
Congratulations to Prof. Gillian Gillison for receiving the 2016 AAS (Australian Anthropological Society) Article Prize in recognition of her article ‘Whatever Happened to the Mother? A New Look at the Old Problem of the Mother’s Brother in Three New Guinea Societies: Gimi, Daribi, and Iatmul’. A panel of three independent anthropologists judged this article to be the best among many strong submissions in terms of theoretical sophistication, ethnographic depth, quality of writing and originality. Prof. Gillison will be awarded the prize at the Anthropocene Transitions AAS Conference December 12-15, 2016 at the University of Sydney.

Prof. Kristin Bright Helps Design Breast Cancer Information Tool
Medical Anthropologist Prof. Kristin Bright and her colleagues have developed and recently launched a digital health information tool that converges ethnographic research, patient treatment experience, and e-health technology. Breast cancer “decision trees” map out treatment options for every form of the disease via the Be The Choice website. Learn more about this initiative at http://news.artsci.utoronto.ca/all-news/breast-cancer-decision-tree-helps-women-navigate-treatment-options/

Prof. Ivan Kalmar Organizes International Workshop on Islamophobia
Prof. Ivan Kalmar has organized an international workshop on Islamophobia in the East of the European Union, in Prague on October 22 and 23, with the backing of the Faculty of Arts and Science and the Department of Anthropology. The goal was to establish a network of scholars to begin researching the character of Islamophobia in the region, the networks that spread it, and the political use of local Islamophobia within the European Union and beyond. The areas discussed included eastern Germany and four neighboring East Central European countries.

Recent Publications

A novel fecal stable isotope approach to determine the timing of age-related feeding transitions in wild infant chimpanzees by Iulia Badescu, M. Anne Katzenberg, David P. Watts and Daniel W. Sellen PhD Candidate Iulia Badescu has collaborated with her supervisor, Prof. Daniel Sellen, and others to publish this article in the American Journal of Physical Anthropology (doi: 10.1002/ajpa.23116.) It can be read online here.

Politics at the margins: alternative sites of political involvement among young people in Cameroon by Jude Fokwang
Alumnus Jude Fokwang (PhD, 2007) has published an article in the Canadian Journal of African Studies (Vol. 50.2: 211-228). In it he analyses young people's political discourses and experiences using ethnographic data, highlighting their disillusionment with the postcolonial state. The article can be read here. Currently, Jude is a faculty member at Regis University.

Foreign Objects: Rethinking Indigenous Consumption in American Archaeology, Edited by Craig N. Cipolla
Status-Only appointment and ROM Associate Curator Prof. Craig Cipolla has edited a volume published by the University of Arizona Press exploring how indigenous communities have socialized foreign objects over time. The book critiques the artificial divide between prehistory and history, studying instead the long-term indigenous histories of consumption, a term typically associated with capitalism and modern-world colonialism. Further details are available at http://www.uapress.arizona.edu/Books/bid2714.htm

Putting-out’s Return: Informalization and Differential Subsumption in Thailand’s Garment Sector by Stephen Campbell

Risk, Reliability and Resilience: Phytolith Evidence for Alternative ‘Neolithization’ Pathways at Kharaneh IV in the Azraq Basin, Jordan by Monica Ramsey, Lisa Maher, Danielle Macdonald and Arlene Rosen
Postdoctoral Fellow Monica Ramsey has co-authored an article with Alumni Lisa Maher (PhD, 2004) and Danielle Macdonald (PhD, 2013). The article appears in PLoS ONE Vol. 11 (10) DOI:10.1371/journal.pone.016408 and can be read on Monica’s academia.edu page here.

Interdisciplinarity, Climate Change, and the Native’s Point of View by Todd Sanders and Elizabeth Hall
Todd Sanders and Elizabeth Hall were invited to contribute to the re-launch of Items: Insights from the Social Sciences, a Social Science Research Council journal that has gone digital. Their paper, ‘Interdisciplinarity, Climate Change, and the Native’s Point of View,’ contributes to the journal’s first thematic issue on ‘Interdisciplinarity Now.’ It can be read here.

Prof. Todd Sanders has also recently published ‘The pendulum swings’, a comment on Bubandt, Nils. 2014 The empty seashell Witchcraft and doubt on an Indonesian island. Ithaca, NY: Cornell University Press. This piece appears in the HAU: Journal of Ethnographic Theory [Vol. 6(1): 493-498] and can be read here.

Request for Proposals: Faculty of Arts & Science Canadian Friends of Hebrew University Endowment Fund

The Faculty of Arts & Science invites proposals for the 2016-17 Canadian Friends of Hebrew University/U of T Endowment Fund competition, due November 16, 2016.

Since all proposals require the Chair’s approval, please note the Anthropology Department deadline is Wednesday, November 9, 2016. Please send submissions to anthro.officeofthechair@utoronto.ca.

This is a permanent endowment fund established by the Faculty in partnership with the Canadian Friends of Hebrew University (CFHU) and U of T to promote innovative programs, courses or initiatives that support student-based activities involving Hebrew University.

Proposal Requirements

Faculty members are invited to submit proposals for student-based activities in the range of $5,000 - $15,000 for the 2016-17 academic year (the total amount available for distribution is approximately $28,000). The general assumption is that the funded activity will take place within this fiscal year, although some flexibility regarding timing may be allowed. Students interested in funding for activities related to Hebrew University are encouraged to apply to the same fund through the Faculty of Arts & Science Scholarships with a March 16 deadline website.

Proposals should be submitted using the application form, taking into consideration the following criteria:

- How the project supports student activities involving Hebrew University,
- How this project enhances the learning outcomes of students.
- How this project will contribute to the partnership between UofT and Hebrew University.

Applicants must be current Arts & Science (St. George) faculty with a continuous undergraduate appointment to a St. George academic unit or program.

All individuals whose proposals are approved are required to submit a summary report to the Dean’s Office, detailing the success of the project and its outcome upon completion or by September 1, 2017.

Submission Process

Proposals should be submitted to the sponsoring department chair, program director or designate for approval. A complete form forwarded from the chair/director/designate will be considered approved by your department or program. Approved proposals should be sent via email to MP Stevens at fas.internationalprograms@utoronto.ca no later than November 16, 2016. A committee of faculty members, chaired by the Vice-Dean, Undergraduate, reviews all eligible proposals.

Proposal forms and requirements are available at uoft.me/fasefhu. Should you have any questions, please contact MP Stevens, Director, International Programs and Partnerships at mp.stevens@utoronto.ca or 416 946-5509.
Upcoming Workshops & Conferences

Antipode’s 6th Institute for the Geographies of Justice, June 509, 2017, Montréal, Québec
Antipode’s 6th IGJ will provide an exciting opportunity to engage leading edge theoretical, methodological, and research-practice issues in the field of radical geography and social justice (both broadly defined), along with a range of associated professional and career development matters. This international meeting will be specifically designed to meet the needs of new researchers, taking the form of an intensive, interactive workshop for 25 participants. The Institute for the Geographies of Justice is open to doctoral students, postdoctoral researchers, and recently appointed junior faculty (normally within three years of appointment). The Institute participation fee will be US$200 for graduate students and US$250 for faculty and postdoctoral researchers. Please see the tentative schedule and a list of readings that will help orient the week. Those wishing to attend the IGJ must complete a pre-registration form and return this to Andy Kent (antipode@live.co.uk) by 31st January 2017. Pre-registration forms are available here. For further information, please click here.

Migration in the Margins of Europe, Netherlands Institute at Athens (NIA) Winter Course for Master and PhD Students, January 18-31, 2017
The Institute of Migration and Ethnic Studies of the University of Amsterdam, the department of Social and Cultural Anthropology of the Free University of Amsterdam and the Netherlands Institute in Athens, organize this intensive winter course in collaboration with Greek universities and NGOs. The courses will combine field research in specific neighbourhoods of Athens and in selected NGO’s, focusing on a general theoretical context in relation to migration, anthropological theory, contemporary approaches to field research in an urban setting and an overview of the current situation in Greece. Application deadline is November 25, 2016. Further details here.

Medical Anthropology and Sociology Winter Courses, January 9-20, 2017, University of Amsterdam
Diseases move across national borders – so do patients, doctors and medicines. Health and healthcare is often a matter of politics, economics and culture too. In the Master’s programme in Medical Anthropology and Sociology, you use social science theory and methods to critically analyze health issues in a globalizing world. As part of the Master’s in Medical Anthropology and Sociology we organize the annual winter courses in January at the University of Amsterdam. These short, intensive courses are designed to offer participants insights into state of the art medical anthropology research pertaining to three key, contemporary health-related themes:
- Anthropology of Sexuality, AIDS and Reproductive Health
- Culture, Psychology and Psychiatry
- Medicine and Human Rights in Cross-Cultural Perspectives
For further information, visit http://gss.uva.nl/summer-winter/winter/winter-programmes.html. Enrollment deadline is November 30th 2016.

Field Schools

Belize Field School,
May 29-June 26, 2017
or June 28-July 11, 2017
This is your invitation to join an archaeological expedition to the jungles of Belize! In 2017, Texas Tech University's Field School in Maya Archaeology (FSMA) will be held at Chan Chich, Belize in association with the Chan Chich Archaeological Project (CCAP). The FSMA represents a truly special opportunity for college students to participate in a significant archaeological research project, while receiving instruction in archaeological field and laboratory methods. Students will have the opportunity to learn how to excavate, how to draw profiles and plan maps, how to record archaeological data, and how to process and analyze artifacts in the lab. This year, we are offering a 28-night long regular session and a 14-night long mini-session. Each session is limited to nine students, and spaces typically fill quickly. Academic credit (6 hours of upper division anthropology) is available through Texas Tech University.

For more information and to download an application form, visit: http://www.depts.ttu.edu/sasw/Anthropology/Belize.php. Contact Dr. Brett Houk at brett.houk@ttu.edu if you have any questions.

Call for Applications, Balkan Heritage Field School 2017
The Balkan Heritage Field School (BHFS) has opened the application session for the first available projects in the next field school season in 2017! You can find more detailed information about the available field schools and courses by downloading our brochure and poster for Season 2017.

The available projects/courses take place at different excavation sites and historic places in Bulgaria and Republic of Macedonia related to all major cultures and civilizations that once existed in the Balkans; starting with the first Neolithic farmers in Europe and Europe's first civilization in the Copper Age, the collapsing Late Bronze Age civilizations of the Aegean, followed by the Ancient Greek, Thracian, Roman, Byzantine, Bulgarian, and Ottoman civilizations. Along with the excavation projects, there are conservation workshops/courses currently available on ancient Greek pottery, Roman and Late Antique pottery and glassware, mosaics and wall-paintings based on work with authentic artifacts.

New projects in maritime archaeology, vernacular Balkan architecture, conservation of artifacts in Greece, as well as a new Roman dig in Montenegro will be available in the upcoming weeks. Be sure to check out our website at: http://www.bhfieldschool.org for news, exciting surprises and great deals for the new season! Academic credits are available upon request to students participating in the BHFS through our academic partners in EU, USA and Canada.

Adult and Juvenile Osteology and Bioarchaeology
Fieldschool, Transylvania, Romania 2017 Programs
Our osteology and bioarchaeology programs are designed to offer intensive, practical, hands on experience with remarkably well preserved human osteological remains, focusing primarily on research skill acquisition. They provide a very effective transition between the controlled teaching environment of an osteology academic lab and real “life” burial assemblages. As such, our programs offer an essential and necessary skill set to anyone pursuing a career in physical anthropology, bioarchaeology, forensics or medicine:
