Susan Pfeiffer to Receive J. Norman Emerson Silver Medal

Congratulations to Prof. Susan Pfeiffer! On November 5 she will be presented with the Emerson Award at the OAS Annual Awards Banquet. The J. Norman Emerson Silver Medal is awarded on occasion to an outstanding Ontario non-professional archaeologist whose life’s work has been consistently of the highest standard, who has made an exceptional contribution to the development of Ontario archaeology and who has earned acclaim for excellence and achievement.

Amira Mittermaier and Michael Lambek Interim Co-Editors of Hau: Journal of Ethnographic Theory

Amira Mittermaier and Michael Lambek are currently serving as interim co-editors of Hau: the wonderful and imaginative open-access journal of ethnographic theory. Inquiries regarding potential submissions are encouraged.

We are also delighted to announce that Amira Mittermaier has joined our department! She will remain cross-appointed with the Department for the Study of Religion.

Michael is spending the current academic year as a Fellow at the Wissenschaftskolleg zu Berlin (Institute for Advanced Study in Berlin). Before taking on the editorship of Hau he published two pieces in the July 2016 issue (see Recent Publications section below). Last spring he lectured at the Musée du Quai Branly and the Universities of Helsinki, Lausanne, and the LSE and delivered a keynote at a conference on The Good, at the University of Kent, Canterbury.

She’ll be teaching a master’s level anthropology of infectious disease class as part of the first master’s program of its kind in East and Central Africa. Sarah will be teaching this class while in Uganda for fieldwork.

Living at the Water’s Edge: Students Collect Stories about Water and People

U of T News has featured an article written by Peter Boisseau detailing how Prof. Bonnie McElhinny’s two courses, Living at the Water’s Edge and Water and Social Justice, is offering unique opportunities for students to get their feet wet in social and environmental issues outside the classroom. Prof. McElhinny’s students are helping the city reconnect its lake system by collecting personal stories about water, and will present their work at the International Joint Commissions forum which is supporting an online archive of people’s “watermark” stories in a project with Lake Ontario Waterkeeper (LOW). Halibut Use on the Northwest Coast of North America: Reconciling Ethnographic, Ethnohistoric, and Archaeological Data by Trevor J. Orchard and Rebecca J. Wigen
Alumnus Trevor Orchard (PhD, 2006) has co-authored an article appearing in Arctic Anthropology (V. 53.1: 37-57). By comparing ethnographic, ethnohistoric and archaeological data, the article seeks to gain greater insight into the nature of halibut use throughout the Late Holocene on the Northwest Coast. Read the abstract and download the full article at http://aa.uwpress.org/content/53/1/37.abstract.

Trevor Orchard is currently the Zooarchaeologist and Laboratory Technician in the Department of Anthropology at UTM.

3rd Tropical Biodiversity Conservation Conference, November 8-9, 2016, Czech University of Life Sciences Prague

Main fields of interests are sustainable development, both in-situ and ex-situ methods of species conservation as well as complementary methods. This conference should provide a virtual meeting place for all involved in the above areas of science and become a real opportunity for an exchange of experience between PhD students and other scientists. The attendance of the conference is free.

The deadline for submission of abstract(s): October 25, 2016. High quality abstracts of original research (maximum 250 words) are invited to be sent to TBCC@ftz.czu.cz. Please indicate if you prefer a poster or oral presentation. Based on the quality of the submission, reviewers will decide upon the suitability of the contribution for presentation at the conference. All accepted contributions will be published in the Book of Abstract from the conference. Further info: http://tbcc-ftz.czu.cz/.

Society for Psychological Anthropology’s Biennial Meeting, March 9-12, 2017, New Orleans

We are pleased to announce that registration and abstract submission is now open for the 2017 Society for Psychological Anthropology’s Biennial Meetings in New Orleans!

We welcome papers, posters, and visual and multimedia presentations on any topic in psychological anthropology broadly conceived, including topics in cultural psychiatry, social and cultural determinants of psychopathology, and psychosocial treatments. All details on the conference and links to registration can be found on the conference website (http://psychanth2017.com/).

Generous travel funding is available for early career, non-U.S. scholars working outside of the U.S. to participate in the conference through the SPA’s International Early Career Scholar Travel Grant program (http://psychanth2017.com/international-early-career-scholar-travel-grant/).

Religious Identities in the Construction of Communal Khojā Historical Memory, 15-16 December 2016, Paris

This conference is intended as an inaugural conference in the collaboration among Florida International University (FIU) in Miami, CNRS-CEIAS in Paris, and the World Federation in London. Its focus is to develop a rigorous interdisciplinary international programme of research on the history of the Khoja peoples through recherche scientifique on manuscripts, printed texts, oral traditions, and material culture. The preservation of multilingual materials in Sindhi, Kacchi, and Gujarati are important links that bridge the premodern-modern divide of Khoja historiography. Coordinating ways to preserve these materials and make them available for academic research is a priority that necessitates international coordination and cooperation. This gathering will explore religious and social transformations that occurred as a result of migration and cosmopolitanism. Further info at http://khojastudies.org/

Call for Fellows: Institute for Critical Social Inquiry (ICSI) 2017

Summer Seminars with Anthony Appiah, David Harvey, and Michael Taussig

The Institute for Critical Social Inquiry (ICSI) at the New School for Social Research is pleased to announce that we are now accepting applications for our 2017 Summer Seminars (June 11 - 17, 2017). Advanced graduate students and faculty are eligible to apply. Applications are due December 15, 2016.

ICSI offers advanced graduate students and faculty from around the world the opportunity to spend a week at the New School’s campus in Greenwich Village, working closely with some of the most distinguished thinkers shaping the course of contemporary social inquiry. The Institute offers a unique and intensive opportunity for fellows to pursue this charge in one of the three week-long seminars designed to cultivate styles of thinking and conceptual vocabularies that address the disparate sites and unequal conditions in which we live.

Awards

U of T Arts & Science Dean’s International Initiatives Fund
The Faculty of Arts & Science invites proposals for the 2016-17 Dean’s International Initiatives Fund (DIIF) due November 16, 2016. The DIIF supports new and creative international activities in areas of need not already addressed by existing programming (Research Excursions Program, International Course Modules, Canadian Friends of Hebrew University and the Undergraduate Research Fund). The goal of DIIF is to leverage Faculty resources to provide a broad range of international opportunities for Arts & Science students. For 2016-17, $160,000 has been allocated for this competition. Faculty members, graduate and undergraduate students are encouraged to apply. We especially encourage proposals from units that have not previously submitted applications.

Proposals should be submitted to the sponsoring department chair, program director or designate for approval. A completed application forwarded from the chair/designate will be considered approved by your department or program. Approved proposals should be sent via email to fas.internationalprograms@utoronto.ca no later than November 16, 2016. A committee of faculty members, chaired by the Vice-Dean, Undergraduate reviews all eligible proposals.

Proposal forms and requirements are available at: http://uoft.me/DIIF.

Further Information
An information session will be held on October 21 at 1:00 p.m. in Sidney Smith Hall, Room 2040. You must register for this session by sending your name and department/program to fas.internationalprograms@utoronto.ca with “DIIF” in the subject line.

Should you have any questions, please contact MP Stevens, Director, International Programs and Partnerships at mp.stevens@utoronto.ca or (416) 946-5509.

CASCA Richard F. Salisbury Award
Eligibility: Applications can be made by any student member of CASCA undertaking doctoral level research in the field of anthropology at a Canadian university. Preference will be given to those who have completed their comprehensive examinations, have approved thesis proposals and are within one year of beginning fieldwork. CASCA recognizes that some eligible candidates may not be studying in anthropology programs, however all candidates must be members of CASCA when making their applications. The intent of the award is to assist with fieldwork expenses.

Criteria: An outstanding academic record and an excellent research proposal with innovative scholarly import and social relevance.
Value: $2000
Deadline: All application materials must be submitted electronically by 1 February 2017 to: rpaucoin@aol.com

This call is aimed at budding researchers with creative and open minds towards the challenges of applied research. We offer a unique learning opportunity in a multidisciplinary research project on the isle of Gozo, Malta. Expeditions and the University of Leuven offer a 20,000 euro scholarship fund to cover part or all of the tuition fee for the 2017 Malta Summer School. Scholarships are granted on a competitive basis, based on a research proposal.

Eligible candidates
- Undergraduate and graduate students
- PhD students
- Everyone with a genuine interest in anthropology
- Previous participants of the project

Selection is NOT based on academic merit, originality or complexity. We aim for enthusiasm, dedication and creativity.

More info and online application on www.anthropologyfieldschool.org

Isla Mujeres Ethnographic Field School
We are currently accepting enrollment to our winter 2016/17 and our summer 2017 Field School sessions. Our main program is our 8 week long Advanced Methods course where students create a professional research proposal, conduct the research and present their data in an open-to-the-public conference on the island, as well as prepare academic journal style articles intended for publication. Attached are flyers for the various sessions.

It would be much appreciated if you could forward this e-mail to your students.

The Isla Mujeres Ethnographic Field School specializes in community based projects and trains students on how to conduct ethnographic research. Located on a small Mexican Caribbean island, much of the student research is focused on community needs per their request. Some of our current areas of interest: Culture & Environment, Latin America & Caribbean, Medical Anthropology, Gender & Identity, History, Space & Meaning and Economic Development. There is a wide variety of subjects to research. In the past, some students have conducted research on teenage pregnancy, HIV and Dengue Fever prevention, Catholic and Maya religion, Economic Development and tourism, Sea Turtle and Whale Shark conservation.
