News & Announcements

Kalahari Reflections Video Now Posted
On September 29, we posted a half hour video to the Archaeology YouTube channel based on the Kalahari Reflections event held at Victoria College in June, 2012. We think the panel conversations, combined with lots of images from their fieldwork in the 1960s and 70s, give a very positive sense of anthropology as an engaged discipline that makes fundamental contributions to our knowledge of humanity. For the 2012 event we convened a group of anthropologists and archaeologists, including Harvard Kalahari Project leaders Irven DeVore and Richard Lee, to share their memories of fieldwork and discuss their commitment to continuing engagement with the communities they studied. Our posting comes only one week after Irv DeVore died in Boston. We hope that this video will serve his memory well. We integrated historical images and music to create a document we hope you will enjoy.

Awards & Funding Opportunities

The Thomas Marchione Food-as-a-Human-Right Student Award
The Society for the Anthropology of Food and Nutrition (SAFN) is pleased to announce an endowed award that honors the seminal work Dr. Marchione did on behalf of the poor and undernourished in both academics and through his work as a Peace Corps volunteer, at The Caribbean Food and Nutrition Institute, The Great Lakes Project on the Economic Crisis and USAID. Made possible through generous donations of family and friends, this annual award will be given to a student whose work continues and expands Dr. Marchione’s efforts toward food justice, food security and access, and most directly, food as a human right. There will be one annual award of $600. The award may be for proposed or in-progress research or a research prize for completed work. The deadline for applications is October 31st, 2014. The award will be presented to the awardee at the SAFN annual business meeting at the AAA annual meeting. For more information and application materials, visit http://foodanthro.com/thomas-marchione-award/.

Society for the Anthropology of Food and Nutrition 2014 Christine Wilson Student Paper Award
SAFN is pleased to invite students to submit papers in competition for the 2014 Christine Wilson Awards presented to outstanding undergraduate and graduate student research papers that examine topics within the perspectives in nutrition, food studies and anthropology. Papers must have as their primary focus an anthropological approach to the study of food and/or nutrition and must present original, empirical research; literature reviews are not eligible. Papers that propose a new conceptual framework or process research or a research prize for completed work. The deadline for applications is October 31st, 2014. The award will be presented to the awardee at the SAFN annual business meeting at the AAA annual meeting. For more information and application materials, visit http://foodanthro.com/christine-wilson-award/. Deadline: October 31, 2014

2014 Student Paper Prize in the Anthropology of Religion
The Society for the Anthropology of Religion is accepting submissions for its second annual student paper prize in the anthropology of religion. The student paper prize is aimed towards recognizing and encouraging the writing by students of compelling ethnographies on religion. Any paper written by an undergraduate or graduate student involving the anthropology of religion is eligible, if it was prepared for the 2014 meeting of the American Anthropological Association in Washington, DC. Books are not eligible for this competition, nor are works in which religion is of secondary or nominal importance. To be eligible, students must be members of the SAR. The recipient will receive a certificate and a $250 cash prize. The deadline for submissions is October 24th, 2014. Click here for further info.

Canadian Friends of Hebrew University Award
Note: the department deadline for submission of proposals for review is October 17, 2014. Applications should be submitted to anthro.office@thechair@utoronto.ca

A permanent endowment fund has been established by the U of T Faculty of Arts & Science in partnership with the Canadian Friends of Hebrew University (CFHU) to promote innovative programs, courses or initiatives that support student activities involving Hebrew University. Instructors and students are invited to submit proposals for student-based activities in the range of $5,000 - $15,000 for the 2014-15 academic year (the total amount available for distribution is approximately $75,000). The general assumption is that the funded activity will take place within the fiscal year under consideration, although some flexibility regarding timing may be allowed. Please submit a proposal using the application form, taking into consideration the following criteria:

- How this project enhances the learning outcomes of students.
- How this project will contribute to the partnership between U of T and Hebrew University.
- How the project supports student activities involving Hebrew University.

Of Africa: Histories, Collections & Reflections Symposium, October 24-25, 2014, ROM

Of Africa is a multiplatform and multiyear project aimed at rethinking historical and contemporary representations of Africa. On the 25th anniversary of the exhibition Into the Heart of Africa - which revealed deep social, political and racial gaps between the institutional perception of what constituted the “museum public” and the actual complexity of Ontario’s and Toronto’s society – the ROM welcomes a reflection on different ways to present and interpret images, ideas, and histories from Africa and its diaspora. This symposium aims to reconfigure the museum as a place of dialogue and discussion that can contribute in affecting or changing our habits of thinking and seeing. Recent climate disasters are causing climate change to strike home for more and more people, but growing awareness continues to be outstripped by geophysical change. At the same time, breakthroughs in technology, communications, and behavioural science are succeeding one another rapidly, and political and economic upheaval is opening the door to new balances of power. Weathering Change: Pathways to Sustainability in Canada will ask executives from the insurance and financial sectors, social entrepreneurs, an advisor to the US military, energy experts, and some of Canada’s top economists to take a hard look at such topics as food security, the future of international governance arrangements, and Canada’s energy landscape. Join the conversation about whether the way out should be global or local, or both; whether avant-garde technical innovations can be made feasible with the right fiscal policies and legal frameworks; and whether reframing the climate crisis to transform culture, behaviour, and political participation can clear a durable path towards sustainability in Canada and beyond. Anthropology STEP Forward Experiential Professionalization Workshops & Peer Mentoring

The Department of Anthropology is taking part in the Faculty of Arts and Science STEP Forward Initiative in a number of ways. The first is a Re-Orientation tutorial that is currently being implemented in 200-level courses. The second is a peer-mentoring program that matches incoming specialist students to upper-level anthropology students. The final initiative is a workshop series for undergraduate students involved in experiential learning in the department. The first workshop will be held on November 14th. If you would like more information on any of these programs, see the STEP Forward Anthropology webpage at http://anthropology.utoronto.ca/undergraduate/step-forward-program/. It also will feature undergraduate student research profiles. For any inquiries or to sign up for the November 14th workshop, contact Lauren Norman, Anthropology STEP Forward Coordinator.

Launch of Institute for Critical Social Inquiry (ICSI) with Talal Asad, Simon Critchley, and Patricia J. Williams

Dear Colleagues,

I am thrilled to announce the launch of the Institute for Critical Social Inquiry (ICSI) at the New School for Social Research. Each summer, the ICSI will offer advanced graduate students and junior faculty from around the world the opportunity to spend one week at the New School’s campus in Greenwich Village working closely with major thinkers who have shaped the course of contemporary social inquiry.

This summer, we are excited to offer three seminars:

Secularism, led by Distinguished Professor Talal Asad (CUNY);

Husserl led by Hans Jonas Distinguished Professor Simon Critchley (NSSR) and Racial Formations and Justice Today, led by James L. Dohr Professor of Law Patricia J. Williams (Columbia).

The 2015 Summer Session runs June 14-21. Applications are due February 1st, 2015. But we encourage applicants to seek funding from their home institutions as early as possible. A limited number of travel grants are available for US applicants and significant tuition scholarships are available for applicants from the Global South.

Please take a look at our website and share this announcement widely with your friends, colleagues, and graduate students. http://www.instituteforcriticalsocialinquiry.org/
