Conducting Research with Urban Aboriginal Peoples Symposium March 19-20
The Toronto Aboriginal Support Services Council’s symposium on Conducting Research with Urban Aboriginal Peoples is next week. Secure your seat by visiting http://bit.ly/1awn4N9. In addition to learning about Aboriginal research and the ethics behind studying, writing, and working alongside Aboriginal communities; participants will learn the essentials of community-based research (CBR) with urban Aboriginal peoples. Topics will focus on best practices for research development, design and dissemination, plus highlight strategies for putting policies and principles into practice.

Speakers include:
- Dr. Amanda Sheppard - The Hospital for Sick Children
- Randy Jackson and Doe O’Brien - Canadian Aboriginal AIDS Network (CAAN)
- Dr. Margaret Robinson - Centre for Addictions and Mental Health (CAMH)
- Bernice Downey - The Well Living House
- Rebeka Tabobondung - Indigenous Knowledge Network

Participants will gain a better understanding of the steps to initiating research with Aboriginal peoples, communities and agencies as well as develop tangible skills for working with Indigenous ethical research frameworks, specifically the:
- Tri-Council Policy Statement: Ethical Conduct for Research Involving Humans; Chapter 9 - Research Involving the First Nations, Inuit, and Métis Peoples of Canada; the
- First Nations Information Governance Committee’s Principles of OCAP: Ownership, Control, Access, and Possession; and the
- Ontario Federation of Indian Friendship Centre’s USAI Research Framework: Utility, Self-Voicing, Access, and Inter-rationality.

The symposium is designed to provide an Indigenous perspective on conducting research with urban Aboriginal peoples and is intended for students, academics, professionals, policy-makers, government agencies, charities, foundations, grass-roots community groups, and anyone who is interested or engaging in research involving Indigenous peoples or communities.

When: March 19 and 20, 2014 from 9 AM to 4 PM
Where: Native Canadian Centre of Toronto, 16 Spadina Road
Cost: Full rate - $350.00/ Student rate - $300.00; Fee includes lunch, refreshments and materials

A limited number of complimentary seats are available to Aboriginal students or Elders. Contact us for details.

With the symposium only being one week away, there is not much time to secure your seat. Act now by visiting http://bit.ly/1awn4N9.

Council on Anthropology and Reproduction Graduate Student Paper Competition

The Council on Anthropology and Reproduction (CAR), an interest group of the Society for Medical Anthropology, is pleased to announce its 14th annual award competition for the best graduate student paper on anthropology and reproduction. Submissions from all anthropological subdisciplines are encouraged.

Criteria on which the papers will be judged:

- Ethnographic richness based on original fieldwork
- Anthropological methodology
- Linkage of work to literature in anthropology and reproduction
- Effective use of theory and data
- Originality/Creativity
- Organization, quality of writing, and coherence of argument

Please provide two files: 1) the paper with no identifying information, and 2) a cover page that includes your name, mailing address, email address, and school affiliation. Email submission of pdf files is preferred.

Papers should be double-spaced, no more than 9,000 words including references, and references should be formatted in American Anthropologist style. Papers already published or accepted for publication at time of submission are not eligible.

The papers will be read by a committee of CAR members. The author of the winning paper will receive a cash award of approximately $250. The winner will be announced in both the CAR Newsletter and the Anthropology Newsletter, and an abstract will be published in the CAR Newsletter.

Questions may be directed to Jill Fleuriet at jill.fleuriet@utsa.edu. Submissions must be emailed or postmarked by August 15, 2014 11:59pm. Students are encouraged to submit papers at any time before the deadline.

Fellowship in Ethnographic Writing, 2014-15

The UTSC Centre for Ethnography is accepting applications for their annual Fellowship in Ethnographic Writing. Writing is a key component of the work of an anthropologist, but it takes time and benefits from some distance from the fieldwork itself, and from other obligations. In recognition of this fact the CE introduced a Fellowship in Ethnographic Writing in 2010. We are now seeking applications for the academic year 2014-15, to be held at UTSC in either the fall or winter term (to be determined by the CE). The recipient of this award is expected to devote their time fully to writing and may not teach or hold any other form of employment during the tenure of the award. They are expected to attend all talks and colloquia at the CE, to work several days a week on campus at UTSC, and to contribute a presentation of their work in progress to the colloquia. All applicants must have completed their doctoral fieldwork and have already submitted significant portions of their dissertation to their committee. The current stipend is set at $10,000 for a period of ten weeks. The closing date for this competition is March 15, 2014. For further info please see http://www.utsc.utoronto.ca/anthropology/fellowship-ethnographic-writing.

Mitacs Globalink Research Award

The Mitacs Globalink Research Award offers students the opportunity to participate in research projects supervised by professors at accredited universities in the following Mitacs partner countries: Brazil, China, India, Mexico, Turkey and Vietnam.

Applicants must assemble and submit a completed application directly to Mitacs. Please save your application as a PDF and send by email to intsubmission@mitacs.ca. Mitacs recommends keeping individual PDF files to less than 2MB. Letters of Support from the home academic supervisor and host supervisor should not be included in the student submission but must be sent directly by email from each supervisor’s personal university email account.

Applicants should submit their application approximately 10-12 weeks prior to the start of the project to allow for adjudication, filing of appropriate documentation, and travel and accommodation arrangements. Please allow 4 weeks for Mitacs to review your application.

Approved applicants will be awarded up to $5,000 as a research grant issued to the home supervisor, based on the funding request detailed in the application’s budget. Travel to the destination prior to the approval of the award is not permitted and Mitacs is not responsible for any costs incurred before the application is approved.

Award recipients, their home academic supervisors and host academic supervisors will be required to provide a final report and exit survey to Mitacs no later than one month after the conclusion of the project.

Upcoming Conferences & Workshops

Wicked Failures: Lessons Learned and Looking Forward in the Global System – Munk Graduate Student Conference, March 20-21, 2014, U of T
The Munk School Graduate Student Conference is run collaboratively by students in the Masters of Global Affairs and Centre for European, Russian and Eurasian Studies. In the spirit of collaborative study and civic engagement, the MSGC presents this year’s theme of “Wicked Failures: Lessons Learned and Looking Forward in the Global System”. In a globalized world where challenges spread across different issue areas, the responsibility to act in solving global problems is shared among different actors and the consequences of failure may be internationally devastating. Failure and human error are however inevitable and this year’s conference seeks to host a global conversation regarding lessons learned and how from these failures innovation can emerge and progress achieved. By framing this year’s theme in terms of ‘wicked failures’, MSGC 2014’s aim is to move past a collective aversion to failure in order to explore new avenues of learning and success. 16th Annual Health and Human Rights Conference, March 22-23, U of T
This year’s conference will explore the wellbeing of the youngest, and most vulnerable citizens of our world. Children around the world face unique health and human rights issues that have long lasting effects on their development and future lives as adults. Through keynote addresses, guest speakers, breakout sessions, NGO and research fairs, we will explore the issues of education access, communicable disease, nutrition, child marriage, child trafficking, and children’s health in times of conflict, amongst others. Our conference brings together tomorrow’s physicians, public health professionals, pharmacists, nurses, lawyers, policy makers and NGO workers to begin working towards a better world. We believe an interdisciplinary, collaborative approach is an essential part of the solution to global health challenges. For more information, and to register, visit www.hhrights.ca

During this symposium, participants will have the opportunity to visit and make art in Montreal’s art hives, learn about the practice and model, as well as draw on their experience and expertise to collectively imagine how the model can be replicated or adapted within their own communities. Intended for individuals starting or already running an art hive, those who are interested in developing small creative hubs for university-community collaboration through the arts, including funding partners, academics, and community-based professionals interested in extending the reach of this work. Registration will open as of mid-April, 2014. Please contact us at info@arthives.org for more information or to express your interest in participating. Further information will soon be available at www.arthives.org.

Advanced Training Program on Urban Studies and the China Experience: “Inter-Asian Urbanity: Connections and Comparisons” August 18th - 24th, 2014, University of Hong Kong

The Hong Kong Institute for the Humanities and Social Sciences, the University of Hong Kong is pleased to organize the third advanced training program on “Urban Studies and the China Experience” with the Harvard-Yenching Institute and the Shanghai History Research Center at the East China Normal University.

The program invites leading experts from overseas and China to address their areas of specialty, with the aim of introducing cutting-edge research approaches to a younger generation of scholars. This year, the training program will be held at the Hong Kong Institute for the Humanities and Social Sciences, the University of Hong Kong from 18th to 24th of August. It will highlight “Inter-Asian Urbanity: Connections and Comparisons”. PhD candidates and junior scholars are invited to submit proposals related to this year’s theme and other necessary materials at www.hkihss.hku.hk/urban_china_studies. The deadline for online application/submission is March 31st, 2014.

Summer Institute for Critical Studies in Improvisation, Memorial University of Newfoundland, June 29-July 12, 2014

For graduate students who have an interest in improvisation and its potential for dynamic forms of community building, this two-week intensive course will explore the theme of Improvisation as Practice-Based Research. The course will examine some of the ways in which improvisatory arts practices can be integrated with scholarly research agendas. How can academic research questions, methodologies, and outcomes benefit improvisatory creative practices and vice versa? In addition, the course will critically examine the changing institutional frameworks that support practice-based research in general and improvisation studies in particular.

The Institute seeks to contribute to interdisciplinary research and graduate training in the emerging field of improvisation studies. Graduate students working in research areas such as music, cultural studies, political science, sociology and anthropology, English studies, theatre and performance studies, French studies, law, health sciences, philosophy, creative technologies, and communications are invited to submit an application form, curriculum vitae, transcript, and one letter of reference before: April 15th. Wilson Centre Atelier - Qualitative Research Refined: design, execution, analysis, October 6-9, 2014, Toronto

Over the course of 4 days and through a combination of didactic and interactive sessions, participants will have the opportunity to explore the intricacies and nuances of several different qualitative methodological approaches. From an understanding of founding philosophies and traditions to data collection and analysis, participants will work collaboratively with facilitators to extend their expertise towards increasingly sophisticated and high-quality qualitative research.

This program is designed for both:
• Experienced researchers from education research centers and programs who want to “hone” their ongoing qualitative research practice.
• Individuals from the broad medical education research community with experience doing qualitative research in a collaborative research team who wish to embark on more independent research work in the paradigm.

For more information about the atelier and application process, visit the atelier webpage.
The deadline for applications is May 19, 2014.
