Terrence Clark Publishes New Book on Greek Culture
Anthropology PhD Alumnus and Status-Only Appointment Terrence Clark published a book last month, in both English and French. The Greeks – Agamemnon to Alexander the Great or Grecs – D’Agamemnon à Alexandre le Grand was published by the Canadian Museum of History and explores 5000 years of Greek culture. The book is a souvenir of the most comprehensive exhibition on Ancient Greece to tour North America in a generation. The artefacts are currently being showing at the Montreal Museum of Archaeology and History.

Teleologies of Structuralism – Three- Campus Consortium
Prof. Alejandro Paz has teamed up with Michael Silverstein (U of Chicago) and Chris Ball (U of Notre Dame) to coordinate a three-campus consortium around the topic of Teleologies of Structuralism. The centennial in 2016 of the posthumous publication of Ferdinand de Saussure’s Cours de linguistique générale offers the opportunity to review structuralism’s first century and its future prospects. This consortium aims to explore contemporary academic debates about human phenomena which still invoke classic structuralist positions in discussing universalism versus relativism, cognitivism versus socio-cultural science, semiotics or hermeneutics versus deconstruction, and the like. Is this an inevitable yet ironic teleology that is itself a structural form in time? Learn more at https://teleologiesofstructuralism.wordpress.com/.

Awards & Funding Opportunities

Michelle Rosaldo Book Prize
The Association for Feminist Anthropology is pleased to announce the Michelle Z. Rosaldo Prize, a new honor in our field. The prize will be awarded to a first book that draws on and makes a significant contribution to feminist anthropology. Prizes will be awarded every two years, with the first to be presented at the 2015 American Anthropological Association meetings in Denver.

TATP Teaching Excellence Awards for TAs and Course Instructors
Nominations are open for the 2015 Teaching Assistants' Training Program Teaching Excellence Awards.

Students and instructors can nominate a TA via online forms: http://uoft.me/ta-awards. Departments can nominate a graduate student Course Instructor by submitting a nomination package. More information is available online: http://uoft.me/ci-award.

Nominations close on March 2, 2015.

These awards recognize the valuable contributions of TAs and graduate student Course Instructors to undergraduate education at the University of Toronto and seek to honour those who exhibit exceptional leadership in their teaching. Winners receive a framed certificate and monetary award. The TA Teaching Excellence Award winners are invited to participate in a panel during the 2015 Tri-Campus TA Day. The CI Teaching Excellence Award winner will be invited to attend the 2015 Teaching & Learning Symposium.

We sincerely appreciate your help in promoting awareness of these awards. Please see attached for posters to include in your communications. Information regarding eligibility and the nomination process is available online http://www.teaching.utoronto.ca/gsta/ta-awards.htm.

Call for Nominations - 2015 UNHCR’s Nansen Refugee Award
 Across the globe colleagues in the international community encounter countless heroes who work tirelessly to support, protect, save and improve the lives of the refugees, internally displaced or stateless persons. Most of the time they work in the shadows, not waiting for recognition – saving lives, providing clean water and food, teaching a language or skill.

UNHCR’s Nansen Refugee Award, established in 1954, is named after Fridtjof Nansen, an intrepid polar explorer and humanitarian who went to serve as the first High Commissioner for Refugees for the League of Nations. Fridtjof Nansen won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1922. The award consists of commemorative medal and US$100,000 monetary prize donated by the governments of Norway and Switzerland to support a project of the winner’s choice to benefit displaced people.

The strongest candidates are those who have compelling personal stories and whose work directly impacts refugees, internally displaced or stateless people. Successful nominees could be individuals or groups (e.g. NGOs), whose work:
- goes beyond the call of duty;
- demonstrates courage – and might at times face personal risk for their work;
- undertakes work that has a direct and positive impact on the lives of refugees, internally displaced or stateless people.

PLEASE NOTE: Each year UNHCR receives a large number of nominations for its annual Nansen Refugee Award. Anyone can nominate a candidate – the process is public. Each nomination is systematically researched. UNHCR does not endorse any candidate. The annual winner is selected by the independent Nansen Refugee Award selection committee, and is announced in September of each year. For more information on UNHCR’s Nansen Refugee Award, please visit www.unhcr.org/nansen or send an email to nansen@unhcr.org.

International PhD Studentship in Anthropology: Queen’s University Belfast

Queen’s University Belfast invites applications to an International PhD Studentship in Anthropology. The award includes payment of full fees (Overseas/EU only).

The closing date is 27 February 2015.

Research projects must be compatible with the research themes of the Institute for Collaborative Research in the Humanities and/or the Institute for the Study of Conflict Transformation and Social Justice.

Full details can be found here, under the heading ‘International PhD Studentship’.

Unity and Resistance, 3rd Annual University of Toronto Centre for Ethics Graduate Conference, March 6-7, 2015
Keynote Speaker: Saba Mahmood
This conference explores unity and resistance in ethics and politics. Visions and enactments of unity as well as oppositions to or rejections of unity continue to animate politics, philosophy and ethics today. What can we say about the problem (as well as the promise) of unity in the 21st century? How is unity enacted through resistance? How do political activists, ethicists, philosophers, and citizens understand the one and the many, monism and pluralism, unity and disunity? Click here for further info. CFP deadline January 30, 2015.

Social Movements and Contentious Politics: Theories and Methods of Local Protest and Global Activism, March 7-8, 2015, U of T Multifaith Centre.
The Comparative Politics Student Group (CPSG) of the University of Toronto is organizing a morning of workshops, and an afternoon of panel presentations, that address social movement and contentious politics from multi-disciplinary perspectives. We invite participants and presenters to attend the workshops and deliver papers on the following themes:
· Protest movements and the interconnections between different local, regional, and international symbols and strategies of resistance;
· The moral and legal implications of political action and dissent in democratic and authoritarian contexts;
· Social movement theories and methodologies, as well as lessons “from the field;”
· Comparisons between varieties of contentious episodes. Other topics that address the broad theme of social movements and contentious politics are most welcome.

Saba Mahmood (UC Berkeley, Anthropology) will deliver the keynote address on Saturday March 7, 2015. Workshops and paper presentations will take place the following day on Sunday March 8, 2015.

Further info, including Call for Papers, can be found at https://cpsg2015.wordpress.com/.

Make Bread and Take Notes, Workshop of the Off the Beaten Track Field School
Food Studies and Anthropology workshop on Bread Baking and Consumption in Gozo, Malta. Bakeries are institutions central to the lives of many Gozitan families. Gozo is an engaging, beautiful, and safe place to do and learn about fieldwork. The fieldschool provides guidance and opportunity for students to plan and conduct their own research projects. This is one of the few schools in the world where students are taught ethnographic fieldwork skills in the field. Further info on this workshop at http://anthropologyfieldschool.org/optionalcourses/page13/index.html.

Field & Summer Schools

U of T 2015 Archaeology Field Schools
Archaeological fieldwork is a great way to gain hands on research experience and participate in the process of archaeological discovery. The University of Toronto offers a range of opportunities for students. Updated information can be found under the ‘students’ tab in the ‘about’ section of the Archaeology Centre website. See also the Field School & Research Opportunities of the Anthropology website.

Huqoq, Israel
This is an excavation of a Roman/Byzantine site in northern Israel with spectacular synagogue with mosaic floors. This project is directed by Jodi Magness of the University of North Carolina and U of T is part of the consortium working at the site. U of T students receive credit through ARH 361. The cost of the program is pending dependent on the results of a grant application. If you are interested in the project you should visit http://huqoexcavationproject.org/ to learn more and fill out the application form. For U of T students the application form should be sent to archaeology@utoronto.ca, not to the University of North Carolina. This excavation is particularly valuable for students interested in the classical world, Near Eastern archaeology, and religion—but all can learn from this experience. The dates for the excavation are May 31-June 28. Pending funding U of T students will participate in a one week orientation course before the excavation held at the Hebrew University, Jerusalem.

Quillacapampa la Antigua, Peru
U of T’s Summer Abroad Program is offering an archaeological field school at Quillacapampa la Antigua, an important Middle Horizon (600-1000 BC) settlement in southern Peru. Excavations of this well-preserved site will occur from mid-July to mid-August. More info will soon be available from the summer abroad program and those interested can also contact Prof. Justin Jennings.

ARH 306: Archaeological Field Methods
ARH 306 is an intensive three week course offered in the summer term between May and June 2015. Working on the U of T campus students learn the basic skills of archaeological excavation and mapping. This course is excellent preparation for students interested in archaeology in Ontario or in gaining skills without a large financial cost.

399 Research Excursion Program
The 399 program is intended for students at the end of their 2nd year. Students participate in faculty research and pay only the cost of course enrollment. Carl Knappett is applying to take students to work with him at the site of Palaikastro on Crete and Michael Chazan is applying to take students to participate in fieldwork in Karhu and Wonderwerk Cave, South Africa. Please contact Prof. Knappett or Prof. Chazan if you are interested in learning more.

ARH 361 Y/H: Archaeological Fieldwork
This course was created to enable students to receive credit for participation in fieldwork on projects not offered through an accredited institution. You need a faculty advisor. The faculty advisor will assign written work that is required to receive credit and will provide a grade based on this work. For questions about ARH 361, you may contact Josse Alamo. Please consult with faculty BEFORE committing to a field project, their experience can help to assure a valuable experience.

Spitzkloof, South Africa

Decolonizing Knowledge and Power: Postcolonial Studies, Decolonial Horizons, July 6-16, 2015, Barcelona, Spain
Application Deadline: February 5, 2015
This international Summer School is an undertaking that aims at enlarging the scope of the conversation (analysis and investigation) of the hidden agenda of modernity (that is, coloniality) in the sphere of knowledge and higher education. This course is offered through the Center of Study and Investigation for Decolonial Dialogues, in Barcelona, Spain, in collaboration with the Ethnic Studies Program at the University of California, Berkeley. The seminar will be held at the UAB-Universidad Autónoma de Barcelona, Casa de la Convalescencia (Hospital de Sant Pau) . Further info at http://www.dialogoglobal.com/barcelona/

Maderas Rainforest Conservancy Primate Field School at La Suerte, Costa Rica
Are you looking for a primate field school this summer? Spend summer in the rainforest! Several different sessions are available: June session runs June 21 (fly in) to July 19 (fly out) July session runs July 19 (fly in) to August 14 (fly out)

There are still spots available in Maderas Rainforest Conservancy's 4-week Primate Behaviour and Ecology course, taught by U of T graduate Dr. Laura Bolt. La Suerte is home to mantled howler monkeys, white-faced capuchin monkeys, and spider monkeys. Students will spend mornings observing and collecting data on monkeys, and afternoons attending daily lectures, participating in group discussions, and working on assignments. The course will culminate with independent projects on primate behaviour, and is excellent preparation for graduate work in primatology. For more information, visit www.madersrfc.org or contact Dr. Bolt at laura.bolt@mail.utoronto.ca. Other MRC field courses with other start dates are also available.
